The Importance of Police Communication Is Relayed to North County Lawmen

By BOB PETERSON

"Police men are human beings, too."
"Oh yeah. How come they call you Sgt. God?"
"The devil made him say that!"

This was the lighter side of a Saturday morning session on internal communication within law enforcement agencies, and between law enforcement personnel.

Approximately 30 officers from four North County cities, plus San Mateo, were gathered for the sixth session of a seven-class, three-hour college credit course through the University of California Extension. They sat in a circle of chairs in the basement of San Bruno City Hall.

Daniel A. Belknap, instructor of criminology for U.C. Extension, guided the discussion. He was assisted by Capt. Stan Cohelan of the San Mateo Police Department.

"Very few people understand police," said Belknap. "Many see you as cold. They get no clues to indicate otherwise and therefore are afraid to take their problems to you. When they find out you are human beings, they will relate to you on a human level."

Capt. Cohelan emphasized the importance of getting policemen to realize how and what he communicates in order to prevent misunderstandings.

"If we can get the individual officers to be better communicators among themselves here, it may help in better communications with the public," said Cohelan.

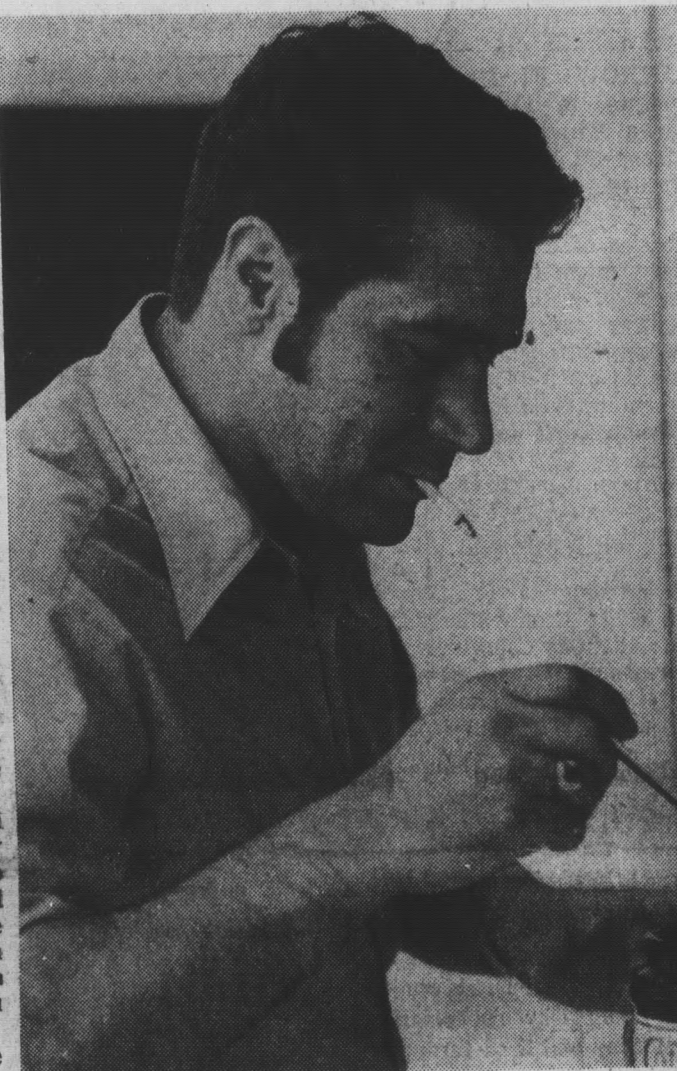

As part of the Saturday session San Mateo Police Sgt. Robert Condon set up hypothetical situations, giving officers an opportunity to discuss the pros and cons of issues.

Pacific Police Capt. Al Tebaldi, for example, was acting as a councilman who had won a seat on the promise he would work to establish a police review board.

Two other Pacific officers alternately attacked and defended that position. Sgt. Charles English presented arguments for the board. Sgt. Tony Guardino opposed the move.

What was important for the officers was to determine whether what a person says follows with how he portrays that message.

Was, in fact, a message sent? Did each know what the other was saying? "Innuendo, sarcasms and shooting messages with the eyes also are means of communicating," said Belknap.

In other role-playing skits, Lt. Tom Culley of the Daly City Police Department took first a favorable position then opposing side of the police review board issue. Sgt. Tom Reese, also with the Daly City department, served as Culley's verbal opponent. Valid points were made in each situation.

Also involved in the role-playing were San Bruno Patrolman Bob Timko, Patrolman Bob Vogt of Daly City and Capt. Bill Cann of the San Bruno Police Department.

It was a revealing learning situation.

The officers agreed that a low-key response is good, as long as the message is put across. Lt. Tom Culley put it this way: "Who's best? The guy who says nothing in 500 words? Or the guy who says nothing?"

The officers found that some officers communicate in an apparent desire to be helpful. Others have an "ego problem," in that they simply want to know from fellow officers what's going on.

"The class has enabled us to get to the facts of a policeman's nature," said Capt. Cann.

"Just getting the North County police to know one another on a first name basis has been a beneficial part of the course," said San Bruno Lt. Leo Flynn.

Capt. Dave Hansen of the Daly City Police Department added that "Most policemen are gentlemen. They don't like impoliteness."

And it also can be revealed, they are human beings.

Recall Election Is March 2

Balk, Then Agree

FACE RECALL ELECTION — San Bruno Mayor Neil Christal, left, Councilman Ted Long, center, and Councilman Dick Griffith will face a recall election on March 2.

Three San Bruno councilmen facing recall balked briefly Monday night, but concurred in a March 2 election date that could bring about their removal.

The date coincides with the San Mateo Junior College District bond election. City Clerk Carl Hultberg has been instructed to contact the district concerning the possibility of combining precincts.

It also was pointed out that prospective city council candidates seeking one of the three offices that may become vacant have until December 24 to file their nomination papers.

Those facing recall — Mayor Neil Christal and Councilmen Ted Long and Dick Griffith — already have retained the Palo Alto law firm of Elliott, Robertson and Peterson to attempt to invalidate the petition process and thereby cancel the recall.

Christal and Long last night challenged Hultberg's "certificate of sufficiency" of the recall petitions saying Hultberg's report of sufficient names did not meet the "substance and form" criteria of the election code.

As explained by Long, the code prescribes certain requirements essential to serving a petition other than a specific number of signatures. There also must be a concern as to whether the notice is proper as to time of circulation, whether the wording is proper, the publication is proper, etc.

Mayor Christal said that because he feared the petitions could be potentially void, all information should be sent to the state attorney general for his ruling. He said if petitions were termed void it would be silly to spend city funds on an election.

Councilman Long was satisfied to go along with the election date if Hultberg would vouch that the petitions complied with length and content as well as number of signatures. Hultberg did. If there are any irregularities, Long wanted the blame on Hultberg's shoulders.

Both Christal and Long said the necessary recall petition information still would be sent to the attorney general for a ruling.

City Attorney Joseph Galligan said he wasn't too sure the attorney general could give an opinion in the matter. He said any fraud or other irregularity would be for the Superior Court of San Mateo County to determine. Galligan said the city clerk had certified there were sufficient signatures, and according to the law that meant an election had to be set that night.

Cablevision

Wants D.C.

Rate Boost

Construction costs two and a half times greater than at first anticipated have prompted Cablevision officials to ask Daly City for a rate increase.

A public hearing on the matter has been set for February.

Attorney Paul Hupf informed the council Monday that original estimates for the Daly City system were $1.4 million. Because of the type of system the company finally settled on, this estimate has soared to $3.8 million.

Hupf called the cable system "very advanced" and predicted it would surpass any cable system in the country.

Instead of a single cable to carry the channels, Vista Grande will use ten wires to project a possible 20 channels into subscribers' homes.

This will eliminate outside interference and provide a sharp picture, Hupf said.

The proposed rate increase would jump monthly rates from the present $4.75 to $6.25. There will be no charge for connections.

Cost of connections normally run to $90.

"We do not anticipate charging home subscribers for this connection," Hupf explained.

Additional "slaves" will cost $1 each. Reconnections of existing service will be $10, if the asked for increase is approved.

One-third of the system will be stranded by June, Hupf said. The entire system should be complete within two years.

Santa Needs

Help in D.C.

For Needy

Santa Clause may not make it all the way around Daly City this year — unless he gets your help.

Seems there are more than 200 needy families signed up to receive small toys and a gift basket of food this year. But Santa's bag is short by almost $1,000.

Peter Markovich, the annual spearhead for the drive, doesn't know who to help and who not to help.

Someone is going to end up with an empty stocking and an empty stomach on Christmas day unless donations began rolling in. Markovich can be located at the Chamber of Commerce office (755-2262).

Someone once said "It's better to give than receive." This might be the time to prove it.

Old Line 40 Seen as Best Route for Rapid Transit

By FRANK LAPIERRE

Recommendations on the best route for rapid transit between Daly City and International Airport will be submitted to the San Francisco Airport Access Project Board next week.

It is expected the route selected will be the old municipal railway line 40.

The major portion of lands along this route are already owned by San Francisco.

Further, the topography and grade along the eight-mile-long corridor are ideal for rapid transit, experts pointed out yesterday.

Three possible routes for the transit extension were examined first hand by a group of 34 persons Monday, representing the Board of Control, Bay Area Rapid Transit District officials, local government officials and the press.

The three routes included the muni line, Colma Creek and Interstate route 280-380.

Bill Lathrop, a member of the joint Venture Consultants team studying the routes, pointed out the difficulties that might be encountered in every route.

The muni routing appeared to be the best suited.

The bulk of the right-of-way is owned by San Francisco.

Southern Pacific Railroad, while not eager to share its right-of-way with rapid transit, has not closed the door on use of its spur track that swings into Daly City from the south. Parking and stations could be located along the muni routing with ease, Lathrop pointed out.

Stations would be located near Hill Street in what is now a trailer park. Another area that lends itself to a station would be adjacent to the new Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco.

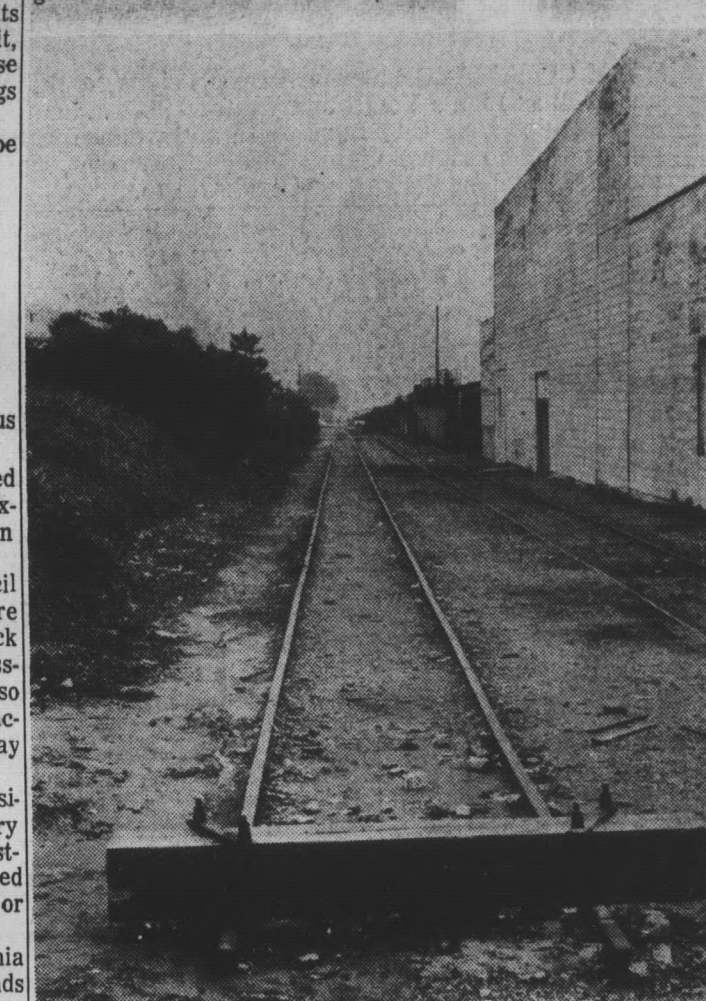

Lathrop admitted he did not have any answers regarding a station next to the new Tanforan Shopping Center.

Calling the matter of a station and parking lot for cars a "touchy matter," he ventured it might be easier to "go underground in San Bruno."

But the costs are a major factor in determining what goes where.

As an example, it was explained that construction of a transit route along Colma Creek into the airport complex would be about five times more costly than the muni route. Also impractical would be the I-280 route because of the steep hills and deep bank cuts.

A transit train line would also spoil the aesthetic beauty of the award-winning highway, Lathrop said.

'Keep Neighborhood Schools,' JEA Plea

The Jefferson Education Association has urged that the concept of neighborhood schools be retained in the Daly City-Colma area.

Made up primarily of principals and counselors in the Jefferson Elementary School District, the JEA, in the face of threatened huge budget cutbacks, has emphasized reductions be made in areas least affecting children and teacher-child relationships.

Reductions should be made in "things first" (transportation, cafeteria, gardening) and "people second," JEA suggested.

"If personnel need be reduced, the reductions (should) be those people furthest removed from direct contact with children," wrote Mrs. Lola McKeown, JEA secretary and Fernando Rivera-Olympia Schools principal.

The contents of the letter were made public at Thursday's Jefferson Council of P-TA's meeting at Daniel Webster School in Daly City.

Fewer than 80 persons — among them seven principals and several teacher-parents — heard Associate Superintendents Dr. Vinton Stratton and Roger Barthuli review budget projections and outline anonymous proposals for cost reductions.

The district is not committed to any proposal, Dr. Stratton explained. He hoped for even more, he said.

However, the P-TA council will circulate a questionnaire asking parents about cutback priorities. The Jefferson Classroom Teachers Association also is polling its membership, according to JCTA President Ray Downen.

Barthuli, the district's business manager, said budgetary projections are based on existing formulas. He acknowledged that the state still could add or even reduce its financial aid.

Barthuli said 39 California school districts ran out of funds last year and had to borrow from the state. He indicated the impending JESD austerity program was an attempt to avoid a similar plight locally.

Annexation 'Fever'

Increases in D.C.

Annexation fever is on the rise in Daly City.

Mayor Bernard J. Lycett informed Sane Mateo County supervisors Thursday he intends to consider annexation of those areas contiguous to Daly City if he feels they can be annexed.

Specifically the mayor mentioned the Dimond Utility District in the Bayshore section of the city. Talk of bringing this district into the city water department has been going on for several years.

"What we are saying, is that this district has no reason to exist," said Councilman Frank Pacelli.

By annexing the small district the best interests of the people would be served, Pacelli added.

It was noted that Daly City has provided engineering services without charge to the district in the past.

Lycett reminded the supervisors that San Francisco recently raised the wholesale water rates on the Peninsula by 15 per cent.

This rate increase will eventually eat up any profits the Dimond Utility District may now have unless they raise their user rate, Lycett said.

Dimond has informed Daly City the rates would not be raised.

While commending the Dimond Board for their "dedicated attitude" the council clearly indicated the district could not make it on its own without help from Daly City.

Supervisors were assured Daly City was not trying to "gobble up" the district simply for the sake of annexation.

"We're trying to be fair to all citizens in this community," Councilman McRobert Stewart said.

No Sign Permit for D.C. Bar

Daly City fathers overturned a Planning Commission recommendation Monday and denied a sign permit for the Outer Limits bar on Geneva Avenue.

The Planning Commission, at the urging of City Planner John Walker, had approved a use permit for signs at the establishment which features live sex acts on stage.

Movies in the same vein are also shown.

And that's where the city council got a toehold.

It seems the Outer Limits straddles the line between San Francisco and Daly City.

While most of the club is in San Francisco, a very minute section — which includes the projector room — is in Daly City.

In considering the use permit for the signs, the city council noted no license had been issued to operate a theater.

The council unanimously rejected the use permit application.

Scores of residents in the Cow Palace area had protested the club — and especially the signs which their children had occasion to see going to school.

But the Planning Commission earlier explained they could rule only on the legality of the signs, their control was limited to size and contents of these signs.

It was suggested protestors take their case to the city council.

City attorney Albert Polonsky and City Engineer David Macabee said they had closely measured the boundaries of the club and found the front entrance and projector room jutting into Daly City.

Mayor Bernard Lycett said he abhorred "something like this (club) even being near our city."

Each councilman agreed, adding their own comments on the issue.

They also promised fast action on a nude girl barker that stands in the doorway of the club each afternoon.

Coast Firemen Fight Blaze, Escaping Gas

Twelve Pacific firemen took oxygen to clear their lungs of phosgene gas after fighting a refrigeration room fire in a grocery store Monday.

Captain Joe Hill said the hosemen and officers were affected by escaping freon gas from a large refrigeration unit at the Seven-Eleven store at Skyline Boulevard and Manor Drive.

Freon gas under fire conditions manufactures phosgene gas, Hill said. Even those firemen wearing masks were required to take oxygen for three minutes.

Those on the roof of the building without masks got the largest whiffs of the gas, Captain Hill said.

Damage was confined to the refrigeration and storage rooms. A loss figure had not been determined.

The 8:40 a.m. blaze is under investigation. Firemen say they believe the cause to have been electrical failure Hill said.

Fire Grades Up in S.S.F.

As a result of the recent fire insurance grading of the South San Francisco Fire Department, the city has been increased from a high class three rating to a low class three rating.

This means some reduction in fire insurance premiums for specifically rated risks.

Acting City Manager Larry Ross credited the better rating to the work of Fire Chief John Marchi and his men.

'Celebration of Carols' In South SF

A "Celebration of Carols" will be the theme for the evening at St. Paul's United Methodist Church of South San Francisco Sunday, December 20.

Following a family night dinner at 5:30 p.m., which will be coordinated by The Group (high school fellowship), those present will adjourn to the sanctuary for the celebration of carols.

The Chancel Choir will be joined by junior choirs from the church school in a program of music celebrating the Christmas event. The congregation will also join in singing the familiar carols of Christmas.

A special element in this program will be participation of a handbell choir, adding its festive notes to the familiar carols. One of the oldest means of celebration of Christmas is the singing of carols, and it is this ancient expression of joy the congregation and choirs will share.

At the morning worship hour at St. Paul's December 20, Pastor Robert F. Clazie will continue his series of sermons on "Advent Attitudes" with a discussion of the essential element of "Joy" in our lives. Director of Music Dan Cieloha has scheduled special Christmas music by the choir for this service.

On Christmas Eve, at 11:30, there will be a candlelight "Festival of Lessons and Carols" to which the public is invited. Based on the service conducted for many years in King's College, Oxford, it is a retelling of the events of the Incarnation. Combining scripture lessons with carols ancient and modern, the service dramatically recounts the prophecy and culmination of the coming of the Christ into our world.

The service concludes at midnight as worshippers carry the lighted candles out into the world.

BRUNO CENTER

The San Bruno Recreation Center's Christmas vacation hours will be 1-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m., Monday through Friday and 1-5 p.m. on weekends, according to Supt. Michael M. F. Kiely.

Boy Slain By Brother Over Salad with the rifle slaying of his older brother at their Daly City home Saturday.

The fatal shooting followed a heated argument between Timothy Ridella and his brother, Michael, 18, over a bowl of potato salad.

According to police both boys arrived home about 11:30 p.m. Michael went into the kitchen of the home at 65 Florence Street to get something to eat and discovered Timothy had already eaten the bowl of salad.

An argument erupted and Michael allegedly hit his younger brother, whereupon Timothy went into his father's bedroom and grabbed a .22-caliber rifle.

When Michael walked into his bedroom a few minutes later, Timothy shot him, police said. The bullet struck the victim in the right chest and lodged in the back.

Doctors at Mary's Help Hospital, where Michael was rushed, worked for almost two hours to save the youth's life.

He was pronounced dead at 2:11 by the emergency room staff.

Another brother, 17-year-old Tom, was asleep in a nearby bedroom. He did not know of the incident until he heard the shot, police investigators led by Sgt. Ralph Warren said.

Timothy told police the gun went off as Michael lunged for it. He said his brother had struck him "a couple of times" following the initial argument.

The boys' father, John, is a San Francisco Municipal bus driver. Both parents were out for the evening and arrived home as the ambulance was pulling away.

Timothy was booked at Hillcrest Youth Guidance Center on a charge of murder.

Front Yard Camper Ban in Pacifica

Pacifica took final action Monday to ban front yard parking of campers and trailers.

The city council also re-introduced an ordinance allowing issuance of exempting permits under specific "hardship" instances until April 15, 1971.

Permits would not be issued for any reason after that date.

The council action was not unanimous. Councilmen Dan Modena and Harland Minshew opposed both laws.

The initial legislation will take effect 30 days after January 11.

The Council referred to its Highway Committee a suggestion from City Engr. Dave Thompson that Fassler Drive connect to Rockaway Avenue.

Present plans call for Fassler to become an intersection in itself at Coast Highway, a short distance south of Rockaway.

Thompson's idea is to tie in Fassler to Rockaway east of the present Rockaway-Coast Highway intersection.

Mayor Nick Gust asked for municipal regulation of throwaway newspapers. City attorney John Sherman was directed to draft an ordinance for council consideration.

Gust used a Pacific Grove city ordinance as an example of what Pacifica might want. It stipulates, he said, that throwaway newspapers may be delivered only to persons requesting them.

Bypass of Devil's Slide May Be Delayed a Year

San Mateo County's No. 1 priority highway project — the by-pass of treacherous Devil's Slide — may be delayed a year, the Board of Supervisors has been warned.

Leo J. Trombatore, deputy district engineer for the State earliest the project could get started, allowing a minimum time for acquisition of rights of way and planning.

"There is no change in that program at this time," Trombatore explained last week, "and the Highway Commission is the only body with the authority to make the change."

"But it looks to us in the Division that, because of the shortage of state money and because federal money is not coming in as it was supposed to, there is no way of holding to that schedule. We don't want to move it, but it looks now like it will be a 1973-74 project."

The State Legislature this year approved a new formula for distribution of state gas tax funds. The old formula of 45 per cent to the north and 55 per cent to the south was changed to a 40-60 split.

That, Trombatore said, and the cutback in federal highway spending, means a reduction of $37 million a year to the local area — District 4. The engineer said the state commission probably will not decide whether to reschedule the project until sometime next year.

The by-pass is to be a 6.9-mile, $13 million project extending on a ridge line east of Cabrillo Highway between Pacifica and El Granada.

ARROW IN Post map points to Devil's Slide area which drivers will cross in the foreseeable future.

Division of Highways, said the delay might be necessary because of cutbacks in federal highway funds to the state and the shifting of more state highway funds from the northern part of the state to the south.

Trombatore's warning was relayed to the supervisors by Chairman Jean Fassler as the board unanimously approved a resolution protesting the fund shift.

Responding to agitation by San Mateo County officials, the State Highway Commission last year moved the by-pass project up on its timetable and scheduled construction for 1972-73, the

$20,000 Loot for Robber

A wiry robber squeezed his way through a barred window at a Daly City supermarket on Monday and fired through a crowd of Christmas shoppers after grabbing some $20,000.

The man worked his way into a vacant second story office at the Mayfair Market, 2350 Junipero Serra Boulevard, in the pre-dawn hours and waited for the arrival of the store's bookkeeper.

When Bessie Zaluralis came into her office at 9:15 a.m. and started counting the weekend receipts, the gunman surprised her. He ordered her to be quiet and lie on the floor. After tying his victim securely the man fled through the shoppers with the money.

Investigators said the bars were about 12 inches apart.

Christmas Lighting Program by WSIA

The annual Westlake Subdivision's Improvement Association Christmas lighting contest will be held Thursday.

Participants in the contest are asked by WSIA president Tony Zidich to have their decorations turned on beginning at 6:30 p.m. in order to qualify for the judging.

Awards will be given for the best decoration in each of four districts in the area, plus an overall Grand Prize for the outstanding yule lighting.

Judges for the event are: Mayor Bernard J. Lycett, Councilmen Frank Pacelli, Anthony Giamonna, McRobert Steward; City Attorney Albert Polonsky, Judge Charles Becker, JUHSD Superintendent Edward Morgan, Times-Post reporter Frank LaPierre and Ron Bates of the Record Newspaper.

Drug Arrest for Youth

An 18-year-old youth was arrested for allegedly driving under the influence of drugs in Daly City Wednesday.

Police reported they found a quantity of pills, believed to be a sedative, inside the vehicle which was stopped near a Daly City high school about 3 p.m.

Earlier two high school students — a 15-year-old boy and a 14-year-old girl — were taken to Mary's Help Hospital suffering from an overdose of drugs.

The arrested youth was identified as Faustino Regino, 18, of Lausanne Avenue.

Restoration of Reading Funds by State Urged

Jefferson Elementary School District reading specialists hope to convince legislators the state should fund fully the Miller-Unruh reading program.

The teachers want community support, according to Dr. Vinton Stratton, associate superintendent-instruction.

The state cut back the program by 25 percent this year, requiring more local funding. Stratton said reading specialists receive part of their salaries from the state, based on a state-wide average.

However, the JESD, he said, has recruited experienced

Rain Waters From County Hitting D.C.

Unincorporated San Mateo County lands make a generous contribution to Daly City every time it rains.

Daly City Mayor Bernard Lycett, in a joint meeting with county supervisors Thursday, charged that rain waters flowing off certain properties within the county added greatly to the recent flood loss in the Garden Valley area.

Councilman Frank Pacelli pointed to the lack of curbs and gutters in Broadmoor Village as an example of how rain waters run out of control down streets inundating low-lying areas.

The city handed over two maps to the supervisors showing areas which experience heaviest runoffs during storms.

Chairman of the Board of Supervisors (Mrs.) Jean Fassler said she would call the county engineer's attention to this matter.

Unless some $400,000 is expended to modify storm drain lines in the Garden Valley neighborhood storm damage will get increasingly worse, city manager David Rowe predicted.

Reasons for the costs being so high, Rowe said, "was the fact that the present routing of the main pipe is under homes in the area." The pipe eventually dumps into Colma Creek.

A Temporary Crossing at BART Site

A temporary road crossing has been placed at Knowles and Los Banos Avenues, because of rail construction at the new BART station site.

The Dravo-Ball-Granite company Monday began modifying Knowles and Los Banos Avenues to receive the rails into the BART site.

Although the traffic will be kept moving on Knowles and Los Banos, it will be slowed somewhat by a hump constructed across the right of way, city officials said.

This hump will cover rollers and accessory equipment needed to slide the rails from the nearest railroad, under the road, and into the construction site.

Work is expected to continue until approximately March 1 of next year, at which time the crossing will be removed and the streets restored to their original condition.

S.S.F. Pump Station Set

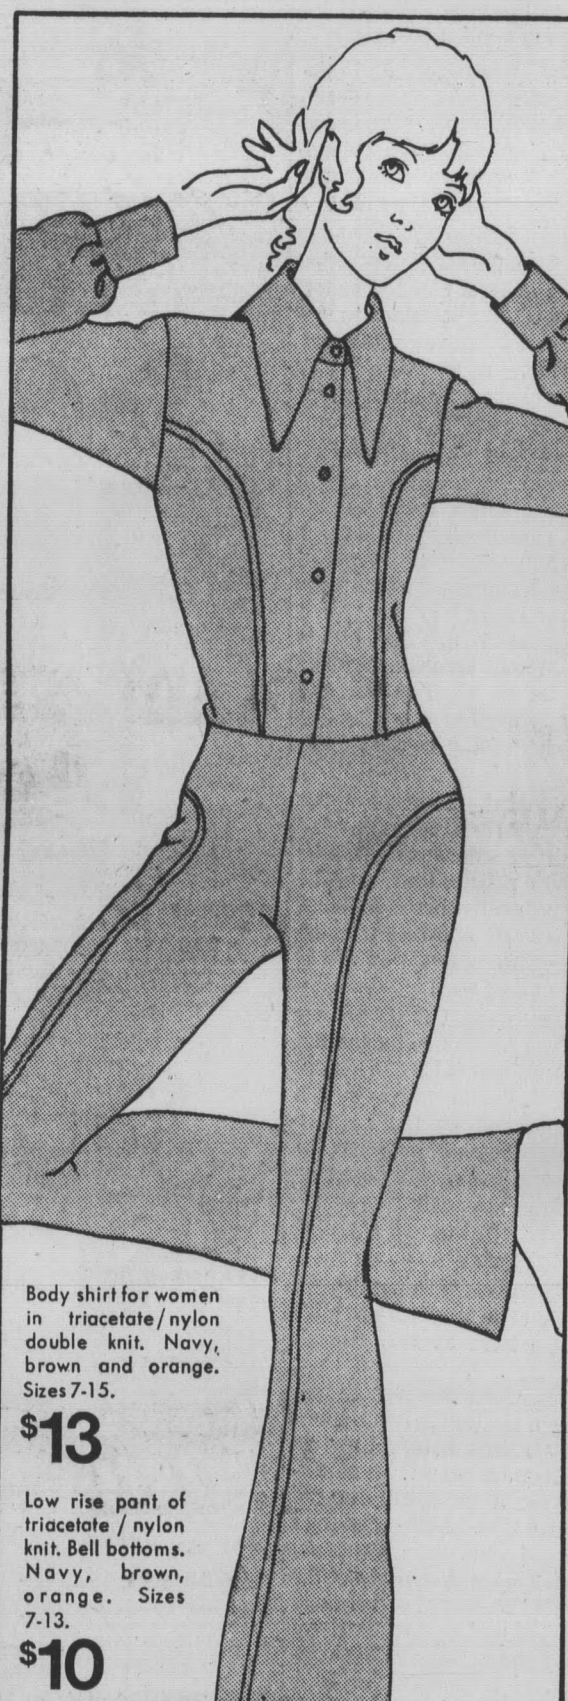

South San Francisco councilmen have awarded the contract for the Shaw Road and San Mateo avenue Pump Station to McGuire and Hester, general contractors.

The firm had submitted a low bid of $351,870. Awarding of the contract was held up until approval was received to use federal funds on the project.

Councilmen also hired, at $14,075, the services of Jenks and Adamson for field engineering and inspection.

Investigation of Death Asked by D.C. Father

A Daly City man has asked the White House to investigate the slaying of his son last week in Guatemala, a death which contains intrigue and political overtones.

John Moore Sr., a scrap metal dealer with business interests in Central America, said the body of his son, John Moore III, had been found bludgeoned to death in a stream bed.

According to Moore, his attorney for his international business interests sent a telegram and letter to President Richard Nixon. Copies of the letter also were sent to the Justice Department and the Secretary of State.

The slaying also prompted the American Ambassador to the Guatemalan military government to deliver a diplomatic note formally asking that the killers be brought to justice.

Moore said his son had been imprisoned in a Guatemalan jail after witnessing the slaying of two Guatemalan military policemen and reporting this incident to police.

According to Moore, his son wrote saying he was not beaten, just interrogated for a week and let go.

The father said his son, on November 30, had gone to a government office in Guatemala City to buy his annual tax stamp. The son was later seen by an employee of the scrap metal firm driving out of town in a truck. He was accompanied by a man in a black suit. The truck was found the next day about 25 miles south of the Guatemalan capital.

"All secret police wear black suits," said the father, who joined in the search for his son and received a $50,000 ransom demand. He said the ransom demand is phoney.

The father said his son's business assistant had sworn out complaint against the son's chief scrap metal business competitors. According to Moore, these competitors were jailed but later released with charges still pending.

The charges were subsequently dropped when one of the competitors agreed to seek the release of Moore's son from jail. The son also supposedly agreed to leave Guatemala within an hour after his release.

Moore said he and his son had one strict rule concerning South American politics — never get involved. "If a political situation came up in conversation, we simply excused ourselves and left," said Moore.

The son, 27 on December 9, was buried last Thursday in Colma.

Board Pay Hike Validity Is Doubted

Doubt has been cast on the validity of a proposed referendum on the pay raise San Mateo County supervisors voted for themselves two weeks ago.

District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson, responding to a reporter's question, said it is unclear whether a constitutional amendment approved by California voters November 3 permits a popular vote on the question.

The amendment, Proposition 12 on the general election ballot, requires county boards of supervisors to set their own salaries. Previously, supervisors' pay was established by the Legislature in accordance with recommendations of county grand juries.

Sorenson noted that Proposition 12 specifically provides for referendum in non-chartered counties but omits the provision with reference to chartered counties, such as San Mateo County. That, he said, "raises doubt" as to whether the pay raises approved here are legally subject to a vote of the electorate.

"In general, however," the district attorney added, "the law is that a salary ordinance is subject to referendum, and the courts generally have been inclined toward allowing referendums — leaning that way rather than the other way."

On December 1 the board approved an ordinance increasing their pay from $14,376 to $16,500 a year. The salary increase had been approved by the Legislature and signed into law by Governor Reagan but Sorenson held that the action was superseded by the passage of Proposition 12.

J. Thompson (Tom) Brown, manager of a Menlo Park boatyard who lives at 1528 Hudson Street, Apt. 1, Redwood City, announced Saturday that he was starting a petition drive to block the pay raises before they go into effect January 1. He admitted he faced an uphill fight to get more than 20,000 signatures by the end of the month but said he was willing to undertake the task on a "matter of principle."

"I'm fed up" he declared, "of listening to the supervisors talking out of both sides of their mouths. They campaign on no-increase platforms and now they do this."

"A complex society demands a certain amount of civic duty. I believe the supervisors have lost their sense of public service. They treat their position as a job, rather than a public service."

Sorenson said the uncertainty over Proposition 12 could only be cleared up by a court test. That could occur, he added if someone sued to prevent County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church from accepting a referendum petition, or if he decided on his own not to accept it. Sorenson said Church has not consulted him about it. Church said the reason he has not is because no one has approached him on the subject.

Brown told reporters he is encouraged by the response he has received to his proposal. "I haven't received a single negative response," he said.

Brown said Frank Ganino, president of the San Mateo Congress of Homeowners, has agreed to act as coordinator of the drive in the North County area. An effort will be made, he said, to place copies of the petition in such places as supermarkets and commute stations. Workers are being sought in each community, he said.

Groundbreaking

In a quiet ceremony Thursday morning ground was broken for construction of Rotary Plaza, a senior-citizen retirement center project in South San Francisco initiated by Councilman Frank Mammini.

Guide Dog for South San Francisco Barber

Making a remarkable readjustment to blindness is Milton Baker of 338 Lux Avenue, South San Francisco. After losing his sight last April, the 44-year-old Baker decided the first thing he needed was mobility, "so I applied to Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael for a dog."

Paired with a large German shepherd named Mikado, he is in the final week of training and will be officially presented his new canine "eyes" in graduation ceremonies tomorrow.

A World War II and Korean Navy veteran, Baker has worked as a barber all of his adult life with the exception of a seven-year stint as a policeman in Stockton. Former owner of the Rose Barber Shop on Grand Avenue, Baker also had a shop in San Mateo for some years.

Baker lives with his wife, Angela, employed at Schlage Lock Company, and 11-year-old stepson, Michael. The family has two male German shepherd pets at home and "I'm a little anxious to know how they receive Mikado in the family," says Baker. He said he is extremely pleased so far with Mikado's guide work and has complete confidence in him. "When he's out of harness, though, he is as playful as a puppy."

Service Appeal Launched By Seventh-Day Adventists

December 5 marked the beginning of the 67th annual World Service Appeal of the Pacifica Seventh-day Adventist Church. Members of the local congregation are making door-to-door visits. These volunteer solicitors will carry official credentials issued by the church, said pastor Lloyd Sewake.

"They are donating their time, as well as contributing financially themselves to the appeal," he said.

Funds will extend medical, welfare, and educational services in 193 countries, including the United States. On a world wide basis, the church last year aided more than 9-million persons, distributed more than 12 million articles of clothing, donated 10.4 million hours of volunteer time, and contributed $5.2 million in food and cash to the church's welfare program, Sewake said.

The denomination operates 134 hospitals and sanitariums and 192 dispensaries and clinics, which treated more than 4 million persons last year. It supports a school system enrolling 392,000 students and publishes literature in 278 languages and dialects.

Broadmoor Presbyterian Church Choir Concert Set

The Adult Choir of the Broadmoor Presbyterian Church of Daly City will sing a Christmas Concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

The choir will render "Mass in G" by Schubert with its parts of Kyrie, Gloria, Credo, Sanctus et Benedictus, and Agnus Dei. The choir of 35 voices is led by Carl Eagle, choir master-organist.

Following the concert, an informal program of carol singing and refreshments will be held in the church social hall as arranged by Dorothy Spratt and Ken Gillespie.

The regular 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday services will include choirs singing and the pastor, Rev. Herbert Tweedie, preaching on the subject, "A Christmas That Changes Our Lives." Sunday School is also held during both these hours.

On Christmas Eve beginning at 11 the annual carol candlelight service will be held. The public is invited to participate in the Christmas events.

DC Jehovah's Witnesses to Oakland Meet

Jehovah's Witnesses from Daly City will attend the three-day semi-annual circuit assembly at the Oakland Auditorium this weekend.

Francis D. Malaspina, area circuit supervisor said the gathering will benefit not only Jehovah's Witnesses but the community when the returning delegates continue their house-to-house ministry.

"Our message is urgent during these critical times," he continued, "not only for survival, but eternal life depends upon coming into peaceful relationship with God's king and kingdom before the great war of Armageddon breaks. To make this important information known is a primary reason for Jehovah's Witnesses to be organized at this time in history."

Dale Dani of the Daly City Congregation will preside at the opening of the second evening's session.

Also appearing on the program is W. Russell, Jr., of the Daly City Congregation.

College Sabbath at D.C. Temple

A college sabbath will be held on Friday, at Congregation B'nai Israel in Colma, Daly City.

Speakers for the panel discussion of "Jewish Identity on the Campus" will be David Klonoff, Mark Friedman, Paul Benson, Marcy Dobrow, Leonard Anspach, Jeanine Hirschhorn, Helen Lichtman, Jules Ehrlich, Gerald Steinberg, and Charlotte Levine.

Sabbath services to precede the discussion, will begin at 8 p.m., conducted by Rabbi Erwin S. Ruch and Cantor Julius Blackman.

New Year's Eve Plans

Louanne Heath's Datebook

Guild member Millicent Jacobson is currently exhibiting oils at the First National Bank in the Eureka Square shopping center in Pacifica.

GARRIT HARDER, longtime resident of the north peninsula, is currently hospitalized in the Scripps Memorial Hospital in La Jolla, California.

MRS. ALBERT THIES reports that tickets for the Second Annual St. Andrew's Community New Year's Eve Party are going very fast and people planning to attend should not delay making their reservations.

The tickets, costing $12.50 per person, are available to anyone calling Mr. or Mrs. Richard Daly.

The party will be held in the Daly City War Memorial Building and will be highlighted by the presentation of some marvelous door prizes, a buffet table which will be loaded to the creaking stage from 9 p.m. until midnight, dancing to live music, and refreshments throughout the evening.

Still more on pleasant ways to spend New Year's Eve! . . . Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan, president of the Fifty Plus Club in Pacifica, reports that there is still some space available on the second club bus headed south for the Rose Bowl.

According to Mrs. Calhan, members of the club, and friends who wish to join in the fun will leave Pacifica on December 31 and arrive in Hollywood just in time to don formal and suits and join in the fun with the Lawrence Welk show at the Paladium. On Friday the sojourners will be in their reserved seats on the route of the Rose Parade. To date there is no firm word on tickets to the bowl game but Mrs. Calhan is working hard on that aspect of the trip. Already arranged is a day long visit to Disneyland on Saturday and the trek home on Sunday.

Anyone interested in going with the club should contact Mrs. Calhan in San Francisco or Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg in Pacifica.

This Saturday the members of Fifty Plus will bring holiday cheer and gifts to the veterans at the Menlo Park Veterans' Hospital in keeping with a tradition of sharing that goes back several years. Members of the club distribute gifts and holiday food to the veterans of World War I and they are grateful to any members of the community who donate baked items or small personal gifts for the party. If you would like to contribute to making the Christmas season one of joy for a number of forgotten men call Mrs. Calhan.

THE W. VAUGHAN WILLIAMS Christmas Contata will be the highlight of the December family night dinner at Lakeside Presbyterian Church Friday.

Mark Smith will direct the Chancel Choir for the performance of the holiday music scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the sanctuary of the Church, Nineteenth Avenue at Eucalyptus Drive.

A pot luck dinner will precede the program and persons wishing to attend are asked to call the church 584-8833, for information on type of dish each family will be asked to contribute.

Rockie Montenegro

TERRA NOVA TOPICS

Activity period, put into effect last year has resumed weekly at TN.

Every Tuesday classes will be shortened five minutes each to allow for a free period (probably held after seventh period).

During this free period, class and club meetings will be held, committees may meet, and all teachers and classrooms will be available to students, including the arts and crafts rooms.

Students may use this time to do make-up work, and teachers will be on hand to explain classwork or to discuss students' problems.

A special committee of students is being organized to plan additional activities. Students will be welcome to offer suggestions for activities that they would like to see held during this period.

Last year such activities as co-ed swimming, band concerts, student-faculty volleyball games, and a student talent show were offered.

The key to this program's success will lie totally in student participation and cooperation.

The TN Planning Council also is attempting to start a cultural enrichment program for students in the form of a monthly activity day.

A proposal is to offer students enriching experiences and to expose all students to culturally oriented activities, such as musical concerts, skill demonstrations.

John Bentley, TN band instructor, who took this idea to the Planning Council, explained that these activities would be presented in a "formal atmosphere," to be teacher-supervised, school-sponsored, with mandatory attendance at most assemblies.

He said the students are being "culturally deprived," because of the lack of auditorium facilities in which to hold school assemblies.

Accent on Youth

He stressed that this day was not to be used for rallies, elections, class meetings, testing, or other school "business".

Each department would be responsible for some type of activity to be supervised by that department, but not necessarily restricted to that department's subject field.

For example, the art department could give a lecture demonstration on skiing, the foreign language department could promote folk dancing, concerts could be presented or full length movies could be shown.

There would be different events going on simultaneously, and students would sign up for their activity day programs in advance. Students would report to their second period class for roll, receive a copy of their program for the day, and then attend the activities for which they are signed up.

The risk of cutting would be just as large as if it were a regular schedule. Students would be required to be on campus at all times (with the exception of all-day campus field trips).

Each student would have his program stamped or signed at each activity he attends and at the end of the day students would report back to their second period class to turn in their signed programs, and make out a new program for the next month.

Since activities would have to be scheduled far in advance, this program would require much planning and coordination in order to run smoothly.

The advantages of such a program are tremendous, however, and would be highly beneficial to students, teachers, and the community at large.

Square Dancing

Monday night square dancing will continue for an additional four-week session through January 4 in Daly City.

The class meets at Woodrow Wilson School from 8-10 p.m. Guided by Bill Caroli dancers will learn beginner squares. The classes are expected to continue throughout the winter-spring months with dues of $4 per couple to be paid on a monthly basis.

NELL
NORTON
Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.
Because of a shortage of space, the chocolate cookie recipe was left out of last week's column. For all you who feel that an assortment of cookies isn't complete without a chocolate variety, here's a cookie that's so rich and full of chocolate that it almost moves over into the candy department.

POWELL'S PERFECTION COOKIES

- 1/4 cup butter
- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 1/2 cup cocoa
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup peanut butter
- 1 1/2 cups rolled oats, uncooked

In a large saucepan combine the fourth cup butter, one and three-fourths cups sugar, half cup each cocoa and milk. Place over medium heat and bring to a boil. Boil 2 1/2 minutes, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat and add the teaspoon vanilla, half cup peanut butter and one and one-half cups rolled oats. Mix well. Drop onto lightly buttered baking sheets and place in refrigerator to firm.

LAST WEEK we considered recipes for baking cookies for Christmas eating and giving. This week let's think about some quick breads that make excellent gifts.

This first recipe comes from a cookbook compiled and sold by the members of The San Francisco Gem and Mineral Society Inc.

ORANGE BREAD RECIPE

- Part I:
- 1 cup orange peel, cut into 1/4x1/2 inch strips
 - 1 cup sugar
 - water to cover
- Combine the one cup orange peel and cup sugar in small saucepan. Cover with water and boil gently until reduced to 1 cup in bulk. Cool.

- Part II:
- 1 1/2 cups milk
 - 2 eggs
 - 1/2 cup cooking oil
- Combine the one and one-half cup milk with the two eggs and half cup cooking oil, add the cooled orange peel.

- Part III:
- 4 cups presifted all-purpose flour two-thirds cup sugar
 - 6 level teaspoons double-acting baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Into a large mixing bowl sift the four cups pre-sifted flour, two-thirds cup sugar, six level teaspoons baking powder and half teaspoon salt. Make a depression in the dry mixture and pour into it the wet mixture.

Beat by hand for 4 minutes. Divide into 3 greased and floured one pound loaf pans and allow to stand for 20 minutes before baking.

Bake for 60 minutes in 350-degree oven.

When half done (at the end of 30 minutes) score the top lengthwise with the point of a sharp knife. Finish baking.

Remove to wire rack and allow to steam 5 minutes in the pans. Remove from pans and allow to cool thoroughly before storing.

NOTE: I found the easiest way to cut the orange peel was to use a very sharp knife and peel the orange in short, very thin pieces, being careful to get as little of the white membrane as possible. Then chopped the peel into small pieces.

Because I like nuts in quick breads I added a half cup sliced almonds when combining the liquid and flour mixture.

The guild of St. Perpetua's Church in Lafayette, California included this recipe in their excellent cookbook.

APRICOT BREAD

- 1 cup dried apricots (about 1/2 of 12 oz. package)
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 Tablespoons butter
- 1 egg
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup nuts

Soak the cup dried apricots in water for 30 minutes, drain and cut in small strips.

Cream the two tablespoons butter and one cup sugar. Add the egg, fourth cup water, half cup orange juice and mix thoroughly.

Sift together the two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, fourth teaspoon soda and one teaspoon salt. Add to the creamed mixture. Stir in the apricot strips and one half cup nuts. Pour into greased 9x5x3 loaf pan. Let set for 20 minutes before baking. Bake at 350-degrees about 1 hour.

Cool in pan about 10 minutes, remove and cool completely on rack.

DALY CITY ROTARY CLUB'S U.S.O. Committee chairman Al Belotz presents basket of fruit and "certificate of appreciation" to recent Rotary guest speaker Maj. Mary O'Toole Goodsell, a member of the Airport U.S.O. Committee. (Post Photo)

Rotary in Daly City
Helps USO's Lounge

The Daly City Rotary Club today will take to the USO Lounge at the San Francisco Airport 100 dozen cookies, oranges, apples, tangerines and about 200 assorted Christmas gifts for military men and women.

This annual project, headed up by Al Belotz, chairman of the Rotary's USO Committee, is part of a county effort to supply the USO's airport lounge with enough foodstuffs for the 50,000 servicemen expected to pass through the Bay Area on their way home for the holidays.

Major Mary Goodsell told Rotary Club members last week how USO volunteers and the servicemen and women appreciate the effort by the community.

She stressed that the USO needs all types of food during the year. They also need volunteers at the lounge, which is open every day to the service personnel.

Many organizations and groups help supply the USO Lounge with food, tables, chairs, cards, magazines, pool tables, and everything that can be used to help the soldier or sailor pass the time away while waiting for his plane.

The USO airport lounge also takes care of the family of the servicemen, in emergencies, giving them food and a place to rest while waiting to rejoin the head of the family.

This is the third year the Rotary Club of Daly City has helped the USO.

Under Belotz' leadership, the club is developing a list of volunteer workers.

SPECIAL READING HELP

Poor grades are usually caused by reading and spelling problems. Reading specialists say that 95% of these poor readers can be good readers.

The Reading Perception Centers in San Carlos and South San Francisco use a testing technique that isolates and pinpoints the real cause of the reading problem. Once the cause is identified and diagnosed, the Reading Center approach treats the cause rather than the effect.

Because each child's problem is different, tutoring is on a one-to-one basis. The Center uses the techniques of programmed learning to help students make the vital phonics associations easily and positively.

Students enrolled in the program average a full year's growth in reading skills over a 3 month period. Private tutoring lessons run $4 to $8 weekly. Parents may call 593-8248 in San Carlos, or 583-2478 in South San Francisco any time for an appointment to have a free diagnostic test.

SSF Women's Club Plans Yule Meets

The South San Francisco Woman's Club Bridge Section will have its annual Christmas potluck luncheon at 10 a.m. today in the Clubhouse at 470 Grand Avenue.

The Garden Section's annual Christmas house tour will be at 10:30 a.m. December 29. Homes on the tour will include:

Mrs. F. Stranahan, 429 Almaron; Arvil Barton, 267 Dundee Drive; Fred Curtis, 123 Mullberry; Mrs. Frank O'Brien, 176 Nyla Avenue.

The women's club is sponsoring a Christmas party of children at the Child Care Center on the South San Francisco High School campus.

Planning Council Sets DC Klatches

"You know there are lots of ways to solve problems but when it comes to people problems maybe the only solutions lie in face to face discussion, through personal relationships," according to Daly City resident Eric Drew, chairman of the Daly City Community Relations Planning Council.

The Planning Council has sponsored a series of koffee klatches bringing together interested citizens and representatives of the Daly City Police Department.

"Every day," said Drew, "the importance of good police community relations is illustrated. Sure we haven't had any major problems here and that is to the credit of the force and the community."

A resident of Daly City for two years, Drew lives with his wife and five children at 2 Randall Court. Originally from Washington, D.C., he attended Lincoln University in Pennsylvania and the University of Maryland. He is assistant manager of the Safeway store in Pacific Heights.

Possibly because he has five youngsters, Drew's primary concern is with the relationships between the police and the young people of Daly City. "It is important," he observes, "that young people know and understand the local police officers."

Drew is assisted in his work with the koffee klatches by Mrs. Irma Stokes. Because it is difficult to arrange meetings during the holiday season, the number of Koffee Klatches has been cut down for December. They will be resumed in full in January. Anyone interested in hosting a police-community meeting should call Mrs. Stokes.

Sing-Along on City Hall Steps in SSF

South San Francisco Recreation and Park Department's fourth annual Christmas Community Sing-A-Long will be Thursday at 7 p.m. on the South San Francisco City Hall steps.

This year's Sing-A-Long will feature the Community Chorales, directed by Patti McClain.

The Chorales will sing the standard traditional carols in addition to "Hasten Now Ye Shepherds," "Night Before Christmas," "No Candle Was There and No Fire."

Following the Chorales' performance, the community will be asked to join in the Sing-A-Long and families will be provided with Christmas carol song books. Parents are encouraged to bring their youngsters to the once a year event. Other choral groups and church choirs are also invited to participate.

SHS Association's Open Discussion

The Serramonte High School Association, through its public relations committee, is presenting the first in a series of "open discussion format" for each academic department at the Daly City school.

An independent organization, SHSA is seeking new and effective ways to reach all parts of the community.

Mike Tugendreich, head of the Social Sciences Department, will lead the first discussion at 8 p.m. today.

Tugendreich will introduce the members of the different teaching teams. Each team will explain the curriculum, goals and teaching methods.

A free exchange of dialogue concerning teaching techniques and curriculum will occur between parent and teacher, according to Mrs. Andrew Ynos-troza.

The meeting is open to the public, as well as parents of Serramonte students.

Teener Dances In Pacifica

The Terra Nova Council will co-sponsor a dance in the Terra Nova Cafeteria from 8 to 11 p.m. Friday.

This dance is only open to Teen-Club members.

Sounds for the evening will be provided by the "Fantastic Sounds" from San Francisco.

Southern J Teeners will dance to the sounds of "Pax" at Oddstad School, while the Northern J-Teeners will dance to "Sassafras" at Fairmont School on Friday from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

THE LARGEST AND FINEST GIFT SELECTION IN THE BAY AREA

WADE HAMPTON has been promoted to manager of the Wells Fargo Bank's new Daly City office. Mrs. Vera Wallace, of South San Francisco, is assistant manager.

Contribution Law Urged By Fitzgerald

Legislation to plug a loophole in the state Elections Code has been urged by the County Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald.

The supervisor said he will ask for a review of the situation that permits large campaign contributions to be made anonymously.

Last week Fitzgerald asked District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson for an opinion about possibility of a violation in the receipt of a $3,000 anonymous contribution by the Citizens Committee Against Proposition A. The gift provided more than half of the money spent in the successful fight against the proposed dissolution of the County Harbor District.

Sorenson said today he advised Fitzgerald that there is nothing in the code to prevent receiving truly anonymous campaign donations. Labeling a contribution anonymous when the recipient knows the identity of the donor could have "serious consequences," however, Sorenson said.

Fitzgerald last week said he thought James M. Dennis, attorney for the harbor district, knew who gave the $3,000. Dennis angrily denied the assertion.

"I am not accusing anybody of any wrong-doing," the supervisor said today. "My point is that the district is planning a multi-million dollar development at Pillar Point Harbor and the public should know who is interested in the project to the tune of $3,000."

"Every politician knows that when a contribution is given to a campaign the donor wants the fact to be known—to somebody. Otherwise, it would be like dropping the money in the sewer."

Fitzgerald said Frank Lee, a harbor commissioner, called to assure him that he did not know who gave the money and doubted that anyone connected with the harbor knew.

"I'm going to check into this further," the supervisor said, however. "If there is a chance that someone does know, it should be made public. There is a rumor going around who gave the money, and it might not be the right person. A thing like this could put a cloud on a person who doesn't deserve it."

The contribution came to the campaign committee in the form of a cashier's check issued by a San Mateo bank. With the check was a note saying that the donation was from a "group of interested Coastside people."

Zoning Meet In Daly City

Daly City's Planning Commission will hold a full hearing on the matter of a Planned Development of portions of Serramonte Units 10A, 10B and 14 tonight.

This hearing was adjourned from the regularly scheduled meeting of December 8 and will be held in the Council Chambers at 8 o'clock.

County to Act on Car Problem

San Mateo County government has given itself a year to solve a nagging problem: how to dispose of an increasing number of wrecked or worn-out automobiles.

"What we need," Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald said "is a burial ground for auto bodies." Where that, or some other type of disposal facility, should be located is what is to be determined within one year.

BETTER BUSINESS

By LORENE BEASLEY
Better Business Bureau

Diamonds and furs — heretofore — have been Santa's luxury gifts.

Christmas will find fake furs under the tree because of the unpopularity of wearing the fur of a wild animal.

Simulated diamonds make impressive dazzlers but the real diamond, often referred to as a girl's best friend, remains an investment, as well as a gift to be cherished.

It is hard for a gift buyer to buy a diamond on his own as diamonds are difficult to evaluate no matter whose best friend they may be. Diamonds are graded by gemologists on cutting, color and carat weight. The carat weight or size is usually regarded by the layman as the most important item in the cost of a diamond but is rated the least significant by gemological standards.

No two diamonds are identical. For this reason, the so-called "comparative retail price" sometimes employed by advertisers to denote a basis for discount prices, is not valid.

The best source of information concerning diamonds is a reputable jeweler. Do not go for discount, wholesale or under the counter deals unless you want to compromise on quality and don't mind the risk of being "taken."

"Get ready for the holidays. Special Pre-Holiday Offer". From now into the spring season such upholstery advertisements will become more frequent.

Too often, consumers answer such advertisements and become involved in a transaction they later feel unsure of. Advertisement may differ from $10 to $20 for the reupholstering of chairs and from $25 to $60 or more for reupholstering davenports. The advertised low prices usually represent labor costs only and the fabric must be purchased at the shop. The upholsterer must make a profit on the fabric to enable him to advertise the labor price competitively.

It is up to the consumer to determine whether the cost of the fabric is satisfactory and just this type of advertising often makes him feel overcharged on the fabric cost. It has almost the potential of being bait and switch advertising. The Better Business Bureau suggest that you shop for quality as well as price whether you are buying diamonds or reupholstering your furniture. Remember the high cost of the low-low cost.

Another holiday warning — you may not reach your holiday destination if you fall for the air ticket racket. Thousands of airline tickets are stolen yearly and hundreds are sold — some to gullible citizens, others to persons deliberately seeking black market travel bargains.

Beware of the person who might approach you in a bar, restaurant or some other place of public contact with the story that he is offering tickets cheap because he wants to build up a large sales report and is therefore willing to sacrifice his commission.

Or, that the travel agency named on the ticket is going bankrupt and wants to sell off its tickets as fast as it can, at almost any price, because it does not intend to turn the money over to the airline.

CAPTAIN DAVID HANSEN (right) listens to comments of Tokyo police sergeant Naon Nogi following a visit to Daly City police department.

Japanese Tour Police Station in Daly City

A visit to Daly City was included in the itinerary of three Japanese police officers last week.

The veteran policemen—Sergeants Masahiro Sakaguchi, Hideo Mihira and Naon Nogi—came away from their tour of the new Daly City police department "very impressed."

The trio arrived in San Francisco from Tokyo in October. While touring the country a side visit to San Mateo County was arranged.

During their visit here the sergeants tried out the indoor shooting range at the Daly City facility. Each fired several shots at a bullseye target.

The use of television in police training was explained to the visitors. A video of their talks with Chief Roland Petrocchi was filmed.

It was later telecast over closed-television for local policemen to observe.

According to Sergeant Nogi, he and his fellow officers were impressed with the organization, equipment and overall layout of the Daly City station.

Nogi said he had not expected to see such sophisticated police equipment in a city the size of Daly City.

Chief Roland Petrocchi said he considered the three visitors "among the most prestigious" that have thus far toured the department.

San Bruno Slayer Faces Life Sentence

A jury that convicted Frank J. Thurber of San Bruno in the murder of a San Rafael Independent-Journal newspaper executive has returned a penalty of life imprisonment for the 45-year-old member of the Newspaper Mailers' Union.

The eight-woman, four-man panel took only five minutes Wednesday to reach a decision on the sentence.

Superior Court Judge Edmond Moor, visiting from Alpine County, set January 7 for Thurber's pre-sentencing hearing.

After a month-long trial, Thurber was found guilty of murder in the first degree in the shooting death July 4 of Allan W. Daly, a systems design engineer for the Marin County daily, in Daly's Portero Hill home in San Francisco.

Two youths admitted under questioning that Thurber offered them $300 to "rough up" the 30-year-old newspaperman. The youths, who have been committed to the California Youth Authority, said that Thurber supplied them with a .45-caliber pistol, drove them to Daly's home and later picked them up.

Thurber's attorney, Nate Cohn, said he will move for a new trial at his client's presentencing hearing. He said his action is based partly on new evidence.

The Independent-Journal has been struck by the International Typographical Union in a pay dispute since last January 7. The Mailers, though not involved in the sometimes violent strike, are affiliated with the ITU.

Businessman Fred Bodinson told his opposition to the proposed widening in front of his property. The city is in litigation with Bodinson concerning acquisition costs of some 8,000 square feet of right-of-way. The city has $14,000 on deposit with the court in the matter.

S.S.F. Delays Road Work

South San Francisco councilmen have continued the public hearing concerning the widening and improvement of South Airport Boulevard from Produce to Utah Avenue.

Councilmen said they wanted a full report in 30 days of all costs, problems and any other relative material on the proposed project.

Businessman Fred Bodinson told his opposition to the proposed widening in front of his property. The city is in litigation with Bodinson concerning acquisition costs of some 8,000 square feet of right-of-way. The city has $14,000 on deposit with the court in the matter.

S.S.F. Aides Get Raises

A 2.5 per cent salary increase has been granted six South San Francisco city employee positions.

Included are park supervisor, building inspector, fire marshal, fire training officer, police training officer and public works inspector.

Wage adjustment was agreed upon part of the 1970-71 wage negotiations. The change is retroactive to July 1.

Councilmen still have not settled the question of parity between the policemen and firemen, which also has been outstanding since the opening of 1970-71 wage negotiations.

Head Start Cut Fought by EOC

The county's Economic Opportunity Commission Thursday flatly rejected a federal directive that it cut next year's Head Start Program by 13.4 per cent.

Edward R. Becks, executive director of the commission, reported that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has directed the cut in all budgets over $100,000 a year.

Mrs. Rosemary Kemp, chairman of a parents' advisory committee for the pre-school program, asked that the commission approve a budget the same as last year's on the grounds it was already minimal.

Becks reported only yesterday that he had received a letter from the Office of Economic Opportunity that there should be no additional costs in Head Start expenditures.

"We should concur with our own director and say we cannot cut," Commissioner Frank N. Ganino of San Mateo asserted.

"It would be miserable to cut our Head Start Program because it's so small in the first place," Becks agreed.

Commissioner Helen S. Kerwin suggested that a "parallel budget" be prepared for the commission's own use in event the federal government refuses to accept last year's budget.

A motion was adopted directing Becks to prepare a budget equal to last year's.

Three members of the county's Commission complained that some of the county's Information Centers are being operated much more expensively than others.

Other commissioners and directors of the "INFO" centers countered the centers cannot be evaluated on how much they spend per person, but must be judged on the programs they offer the poor.

The centers have been set up in Daly City, South San Francisco, San Mateo, Redwood City and East Palo Alto as part of the county's War on Poverty.

Commissioners Antonio Montoya of South San Francisco and Frank Ganino of San Mateo complained South San Francisco serves more people than Redwood City, but operates on a smaller budget.

The South San Francisco info center, with a budget of $27,000, served 3,756 people last year, it was claimed. The Redwood City center had a budget of $29,000 and served 1,262 persons.

Commissioner Julius Castelan brought up the subject when he objected the South San Francisco center has one of the lowest budgets of any center in the county.

"I feel you cannot count dollars against heads," Clifford Boxley, director of the Redwood City PROBE center, asserted. He pointed out that Redwood City, almost without help, acquired a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Affairs and developed its own community park.

"In East Palo Alto we have a lot of intangibles," Israel Harris declared.

Montoya complained while private industry compared one figure against another, government projects do not.

"Maybe this is the reason we are spending more money. The Poverty Program was brought in as a pump-priming measure five years ago. And here we are, still spending money. All I'm asking here is where does the money go," Montoya said.

One of the primary purposes of the Office of Economic Opportunity is to make changes, such as organize tenant unions and revitalize housing, Becks explained.

Gregorio Top Spender in Campaign

Arlen F. Gregorio, successful candidate for the State Senate in the November 3 general election, spent more on his campaign than any other local candidate, according to declarations filed with County Clerk Recorder Marvin Church.

The statement filed by the victorious Democrat lists expenses of $34,808.

It also indicates a campaign deficit, showing only $29,259 in receipts.

Republican Carl A. Britschgi, who gave up a Senate Assembly post to run for the Senate in a losing fight against Gregorio, listed $33,436 in expenditures. He said he put in $548 of his own money to balance the campaign treasury.

Congressman Paul N. McCloskey Jr., who won an easy victory over Democrat Robert E. Gomperts, ended up with a surplus, according to a statement filed by Peter Arnstein of his campaign committee. The documents show expenses of $32,736 and receipts of $39,295.

Gomperts, who made no secret of his feeling that he had no chance to win, said he spent $3,129, including $425 of his own cash.

Declarations of candidates in the Assembly races:

Twenty-sixth District—Republican Dixon Arnett, the winner, $22,868; Democrat Arie Schooli, $4,661; American Independent Party Candidate Joseph D. Cooney, $1,135.

Twenty-seventh District—Democrat Leo J. Ryan, who won re-election, $13,524; Republican John R. Sherman, $5,477; AIP candidate John W. Lynch, $44.

In the Senate race, AIP candidate Robert W. Bullock said he spent less than $500 of his own money.

School board campaigns, which usually cost little or nothing, were expensive propositions in the heated race in the San Mateo High School District. Dr. Joseph Craig, who was elected, listed expenses of $4,064, but still less than the two losers. Mrs. Ann B. Benner declared costs of $7,090, including $5,785 of her own money, while Israel Tribble listed $4,424 in expenses. Craig campaigned as an opponent of flexible scheduling while

Mrs. Benner and Tribble took liberal positions on the subject. The Citizens Committee Against Proposition A, which carried on a lively campaign against the proposed dissolution of the County Harbor District, spent $5,130 in the effort, according to a statement filed by Patricia A. Everett.

Receipts in that amount included an anonymous cashiers check for $3,000, according to the declaration.

Bruno JC's Change Name

The board of directors of the Millbrae-San Bruno Jaycees recently voted to change their name to the San Bruno Jaycees. They selected Frank Prisco Jr. as president.

Other officers announced were: Dave Umbertus as vice president; Von R. Hansen as secretary-treasurer and John C. Cadigan as chairman of the board.

Prisco assumes duties from Edward Nightingale of Millbrae. In accepting the office, Prisco stated that an accent would be placed on local involvement and growth as opposed to the previous policy of action within the state organization. Upcoming activities will include an "Old-Timers Night" and a "Bosses Night."

Flight Control Rules Delayed

A proposed application to the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) for a rule change that would lessen the number of departures from San Francisco International Airport over South San Francisco may take six months, said city attorney John Noonan.

Lighting Contest

THAT W.S.I.A. YULE lighting contest is tomorrow NOT Friday as told previously in this misguided column.

SICK CALL — Pat DePatta back home convalescing following a stroke. Pat's waiting for visitors at his pad (225 Coronado Apt. 120). "That's all I can do... wait," says Pat... Daly City civic leader Ray (Firecracker) Logan. Successful surgery.

CLOSE SHAVE — Our man in the Westlake Liquor store, Joe Gallop, has shaved off that hideous moustache after an overwhelming number of readers told him he looked like a wounded walrus with it on. Tough, Joe. The truth always hurts!

CROW A LA CARTE — That was the menu the other day when we ran out of petrol on the Junipero Serra freeway in front of Joe Lewkowicz's gas station. Like a true gentleman, Joe forgave us our past barbs against him (he's city treasurer you know??) and sold us two gallons of gas. At least we hope it was gasoline.

HEY KIDS — You want Santa to bring you a toy for Christmas? Then you gotta bring him a repairable old one. Marilyn Idema, Serramonte Center's promotion director, whispered this tip: Take your repairable toys to Santa up at Serramonte so he can give them to the "Toys for Tots" campaign... And Mel Lichtman is giving away a straw hat and a free soft drink to people bringing in repairable toys to his Shakey's Pizza Palace in the Broadmoor shopping center. Both drives intend to turn the toys over to the Marine Corps Reserve for distribution.

THE QUESTION IS: Will the so-called "other side" on that Knowles avenue improvement project be given equal time to air their views? We're talking about all that PR space given to Daly City's stand recently. Doubtful, very doubtful.

NOT THAT THE Knowles project isn't needed, or isn't a good thing, mind you. It's needed — and badly. However, it might behoove the city to listen to folks directly affected once in a while instead of all those blue ribbon (Blue Nose) panels they set up all over town.

WHAT WITH SOME of the advice we've been getting out of the Daly City engineer's office these days, folks don't know whether to take their garbage to a vacant lot under cover of a heavy rainstorm, or stay home and move the furniture to higher ground. I STILL say the D.C. department head that gave out that advice was just trying to cheer everyone up with a little joke.

AND ACROSS THE HALL, City Planner John Walker has put all sorts of stipulations on those signs outside the Outer Limits smutbar on Geneva. He first defended the signs in order to "warn" people on inside happenings, so they wouldn't be shocked. Last time he talked to the Planning Commission he wanted everything taken off the outer walls of the Outer Limits except the name of the place. So how can you "warn" someone with just a name sign? Let's all ask for understanding on this mindboggler.

JUST HEARD — The D. C. Rotary Club wants to pay for the petrol and oil used in delivering Christmas stuff to needy local families — providing the trucks are furnished by the Jeff High School district. Although this would NOT cost taxpayers a plugged dime (it used to be a plugged nickel before inflation) some people are protesting. There are always those who protest, regardless of what the cause. Bah, humbug!

FAST RESPONSE — To that item in this column about influential citizens not cleaning up their vacant lots. They all agree that "outsiders" use these lots for dumping their garbage. What we can't understand is who dumps those high - as - an - elephant's - eye weeds covering the lots. Mother Nature?

DALY CITY GOT ANOTHER clean bill of health on the annual budget from auditor Richard Dwyer. There was one teeny weeny oversight on the part of the city, however. It seems the city has been paying insurance premiums for a building that was sold some time ago.

NOT ONLY HAS BARTD got external troubles from folks barbing them all the time, they now have a few internal problems coming to light. Seems the rapid transit directors are having trouble rapidly choosing a new chairman to take over from Bill Reedy. The vote last week was an even 6-6. And we ain't saying who the two contenders are — yet!

FLASHY FLASHY — The Loyal Order of Moose (D.C.) are backtracking — fast — after one of their members made a truly remarkable blunder. Seems he asked for a list of 20 needy families in the city — but insisted they be White only! The word went out. Everyone vaguely connected with in suring that ALL people in need of help are taken care of, got uptight. Moose official Ed Munkeboe quickly informed this column that efforts were being made to correct the wrong done by this unnamed member, who took the song "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" literally.

Attention Is Shoplifting Deterrent

By FRANK LAPIERRE

The dramatic rise in the incidence of shoplifting in the past five years is credited with creating a profitable boom in the criminal detection field. Unwittingly the shoplifter has helped to spur the manufacture of up-to-date equipment designed to capture him. And petty crooks have provided the justification for most stores to add personnel to beef up security.

Many merchants feel that a first-rate education program aimed at youths and participated by schools is the best weapon in the war on shoplifting now being waged in San Mateo County.

Criminal Detection Field Boom

Others want tougher penalties for those convicted instead of what they call "a slap on the wrist."

Most agree that the best in-store deterrent to shoplifting is to "show a customer with attention."

"A potential shoplifter — amateur or pro — just can't stand attention. That's the last thing they want," a security agent pointed out.

People also can help to combat store theft by quietly calling attention of a store employee to a suspected shoplifter.

Electronics has now been employed in the war. Everything from closed-circuit television that can be remotely controlled from a security office to fake mirrors everywhere — except in women's dressing and rest rooms — is being used.

Television monitors now crank out video tapes automatically complete with sound. Stores are so proud of these expensive devices that they ask people to "smile you are on camera."

Many stores install two-way mirrors to observe customers from behind walls and convex mirrors at strategic points to watch shoppers.

Unless a clerk happens to be watching a mirror at the time of a theft, the mirror is of little use and acts more as a psychological obstacle to shoplifters, police claim.

However, many security agents say mirrors have aided in the detection and apprehension of shoplifters on numerous occasions.

Some retailers rely on properly-trained store personnel — claiming they are the very backbone of the security setup.

"Some 90 percent of the people that come into our store are good honest customers," one manager explained. "all this equipment and training is for that single percent who are neither good nor honest in their dealings with us."

What do people steal?

A young man walked into a downtown San Francisco department store, picked up an expensive 40 pound dictionary and walked out the door.

It was later recovered from his apartment when the young man was picked up for a similar crime at another store.

A middle-aged woman managed to struggle home from a Westlake department store with a 9'x12' rug that was later found by police who caught the suspect during another shoplifting doors away from where the rug was taken.

It took two department store employees to cart it back.

Another story that made the rounds of Serramonte a few months back was the one about a fellow who walked into a store, picked up a portable color television set and was out the door with store clerks close on his heels.

He was caught.

Some get away.

Two men and a woman rushed into a men's clothing store in Westlake, grabbed several suits off a nearby rack and dashed back to their waiting car. They made their getaway before amazed store employees realized what happened.

Since that time the store has reversed every other coat hook as a deterrent to similar acts.

Hardest hit, however, is the women's clothing section.

"Funny thing about women who are caught stealing is that they always seem to have enough money in their purse to pay for the item," a store manager said.

For every new method of stealing from stores, regardless of what they sell, there is a modern method of fighting it, police and store security agents boast.

"We are aware of how shoplifters — amateurs and professionals — operate," a Peninsula store manager said.

With all the sophisticated electronic gear now employed in the battle, you are probably being watched by someone in whichever store you decide to do your Christmas Shoplifting.

Recall, BART Hearings and Supervisorial Pay

Editor, The Post:

Little mention is being made of the hearings taking place on the extension of BART into the Peninsula. But residents better become concerned as this area may become a "stacking and storage place" for the trains.

San Francisco is to have beautiful stations and malls. Mayor Alioto promises commuters they will step from the trains into a veritable wonderland of treelined streets and handsome fountains. But once these trains reach his city he has no place to store them until the evening rush begins. BART does not want to divert them back to their starting point. It would be preferable to continue through the city and down the Peninsula — leave the trains in a suburban town — and run them back to San Francisco and outlying communities at the peak hours.

Bear in mind, Richmond, Calif., used to be the holding area for all the Pullman cars. The noise and repair work were never ending. The unsightly yards were a problem to the community. It is difficult to disguise such a project.

The Peninsula suffers with smog from San Francisco's Airport. It puts up with San Francisco's jail which is located in a residential area of San Bruno. It holds the water supply. Must we also become an industrial looking community, something which might be found on the outskirts of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, or Boston?

Or can we fight to retain our trees and suburban homes from such encroachment?

Editor, The Post:

The "no recall committee" states — "get the facts" — we agree! Get the facts — we did and served as petition carriers for the recall committee! We pushed doorbells, listened to comments, asked questions and comment made during our tours:

1. Where did the funds for the recall come from! Fact: From badly strained budgets in many a household such as ours.

2. "He's a good guy" — fact: The history books are filled with good guys (and the world), what do you want? Good guys or good government? Our votes included two of the three councilmen involved in the recall.

3. "I don't want to get involved" — Fact: Again, history shows us the results of those who didn't get involved (at all or too late). We say — get involved! Seek both sides of the fence; ask questions, read the petitions, call both the recall and no recall headquarters — ask about the initial issue, "why were 90 applicants set aside for the selection of one man? (Don't be swayed by just things you would like to hear aside from this prime issue.)

Why were the three councilmen so adamant in their selection and refuse to discuss it with the residents? Why do we suddenly have 300 to 500 attending a council meeting each time? It is your city, you should ask questions and you should have qualified leadership to answer.

4. "We can't commit ourselves, because my mother, father, wife, etc., work for the city. We're afraid of repercussions — they can create problems later."

Who? Why? The three councilmen in question, particularly one, have assured all citizens the right to voice their opinion without fear. Best you consider how good something is that is so intimidating. Have you thought about, when giving up your privilege granted to all citizens to voice your opinion responsibly, that one day you may not have any privileges?

There are approximately 17,000 registered voters in our city. We're involved, are you? MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM J. TERRY, San Bruno.

Accomplishment

By JAMES W. HALLEY
Post-Times Columnist

The place of Twentieth century America in world history is assured. Our depressions, politics, wars and world dominance will form important pages of that record. But our major accomplishment is something else. It will be remembered as our mastery of the unknown. It will be recorded that we have, since 1940, reached beyond the borders of man's knowledge in an organized and planned manner. Ours will be memorialized as a time during which man, principally American man, repeatedly passed through scientific and technological frontiers.

We are the first people to do more than dream, and to remove change from the captivity of chance. We are the first people to plan audaciously doing the undone and the first people to voluntarily commit our resources to such ventures. World War II's commitment of funds, brains and manpower to the development of the atomic bomb was the prototype. Polaris is another example. Our pledge of the Sixties to place a man on the moon is perhaps the most spectacular.

The present has been a time of winding down and we are not engaged in such historical undertakings. But we have behind us 30 years of practice with the unknown and we possess incredible intellectual, scientific, engineering and financial capacity. We are now changing from a war to a peace time economy — and this is an ideal moment for the planning of new missions.

But what should these missions be? More instruments of death? Further steps into space? In the present national mood these may not be suitable, for such ventures not only produce scientific and technological advance they also provide our people with a sense of purpose and at this juncture the American conscience yearns for projects that aid and do not destroy.

There are many suitable objectives. Why, for example should we tolerate cancer? It forms a continuing national tragedy. Next year about 335,000 Americans will die of the disease, or about 920 persons a day or more than one every two minutes. There are currently almost a million Americans under medical care for cancer and about 635,000 cases will be diagnosed for the first time in 1971.

But such numbers only attest to the quantitative magnitude of the problem. Only direct experience can give an understanding of its quality, and almost all of us have had such immediate contact. This illness has no respect for flesh or mind. While its incidence increases with advancing age it attacks the young, the vital and the strong. It strangles, causes bones to collapse, and fills the human structure with wild and ungovernable growth. In weeks it can change the robust to withered and ruined remains before whom death stands as no scepter but as a blessing. Nothing devised by the evil genius of man has come close to matching the dread of this killer.

Of every three persons who get cancer today, two will die. At present rates one of every four Americans now living will have cancer.

What better history could we write than the planned elimination of this disease. The commitment, while massive, would not come near matching our moon venture in cost and if successful the benefits would be incredible. This project and others are worth doing, and our national destiny requires that we get going again. With the committed leadership of the United States, this effort could become international in scope, and thus mark a new day in man's advance into the unknown.

World Pollution

A FOLDOUT PICTURE at the beginning of an article in the December 1970 issue of National Geographic shows the sluggish, gray waters of a polluted river. Flanked by belching factories: clogged by rotting piers and crisscrossed by bridges, the Cuyahoga symbolizes the extent of world-wide pollution.

A picture from Tokyo, Japan, reveals that in that city oxygen vending machines have been installed to give the residents relief from air pollution. Indeed the air over Tokyo is so filled with smog it can send over 8000 people to the hospitals, as it did last July.

Air pollution, the authors declare affects every major city in the world and many small ones. A black and white close-up picture shows the particles that ride through the Los Angeles smog to the extent of an average of one billion per cubic foot of air.

While the number of particles per foot is not increasing over Los Angeles city, the area afflicted by the smog is spreading.

Of the waste that pollutes the land, The National Geographic article states that in the United States the average waste equals six pounds per person per day. Most of this is dumped on or into the earth where it continues to pollute or into rivers or lakes, many having very little flushing action.

AS A RESULT, there is so much waste in some rivers that river beds have been the scene of great fires — last year burning oil in the Cuyahoga River burned two railroad bridges.

Such alien matters as oil and detergent wastes in the water have been known to disrupt life cycles in many areas killing birds, fish and animals from the largest to the smallest species and even men.

The National Geographic article discusses the effect on the environment of airplanes, rockets, automobiles, ships, locomotives and industry; then turns to an account of what steps have been taken to clear up the pollution and stop its production.

In the words of Gordon Young, who wrote the article, "In saving our world from pollution, we are brothers and so we must act... Though world-wide and enormous, the problems of pollution surely are solvable by a human race capable of such a feat of science and technology as flight to another heavenly body — given the most precious ingredient of all, Peace on earth, good-will toward men."

"The public has great power," he continues, "but because of apathy or fear or economic pressure, all too often it doesn't speak out." But now is the time to form antipollution groups everywhere.

To this end we attach a list of antipollution books that may be found in the public libraries of San Mateo County.

"Conservation: Now Or Never," by Nicholas Roosevelt; "Concepts Of Ecology," by Edward J. Kormody; "The Environment," by Harold W. Hefrich treat the entire problem.

A HANDBOOK for environmental activists under the title "Ecotactics" has been published by the Sierra Club. The politics of fighting pollution is discussed in several books. Among them are Richard A. Cooley's "Congress And The Environment" and J. Clarence Davies, "The Politics Of Pollution."

"How To Kill A Golden State," by William Bronson discusses the problems of California while Frank Graham's "Since Silent Spring" has been both widely read and discussed. A further discussion of the plight of animals in the world that man has spoiled may be found in Francis Wood's "Animals In Danger; the Story of Vanishing American Wildlife."

Erwin Cooper's "Aqueduct Empire," is a history of California's water supply; Robert H. Dreisbach's book, "Handbook Of The San Francisco Region" is a fascinating compendium of facts about the Bay Area.

A list of other books may be found in the March-April issue of "Synergy" from the Bay Area Reference Center. Within this periodical we find a quotation revealing a startling fact:

"If mother's milk were in any other container it would technically be prohibited from crossing state lines. DDT concentration in the milk of seven Berkeley mothers was two to six times the amount allowed in milk for commercial sale."

RECENTLY A PROMINENT citizen of San Mateo County said:

"Now is the time to salute the work of the Art Guild of Pacifica. Here is an organization that reaches out to creative people and offers them the guidance of their fellow artists."

"Here is an organization," he continued, "that has won recognition in the San Francisco Bay Area and in all of California."

Presently 120 artists are members of the Art Guild of Pacifica. While some claim Pacifica as their home, others come from San Francisco; still others from the cities of San Mateo County. From the guild they receive inspiration to develop their interests in art and to develop their techniques.

Mrs. Dufur is one of the artists whose work is hanging in a December show by guild members in the Daly City Public Library at 275 Southgate Avenue. Other artists represented in the show are: Diane Poehlman of Daly City; her husband Kurt; Jackie DeCello with a western landscape; Herman Loger — President of the club and Serop Vardanian who has two landscapes in the show.

While the show is not a commercial venture, buyers may contact the artist. Each painter has agreed that 15 per cent of all sales will go to the Friends of the Library for the promotion of the public library of Daly City.

THE MARQUEE

The writer-director of the historical epic "Cromwell" is fascinated by great men of power and destiny. He hit upon the important English Civil War figure while shooting "The Trials of Oscar Wilde" and has since written scripts on the life of Christ and Karl Marx.

Born in Liverpool, England, Ken Hughes, 43, researched Oliver Cromwell for eight years and read 120 volumes on the leader.

"It isn't my intention to educate the masses but Cromwell's exploits and achievements are barely known today. English school children probably know more about the American Civil War than about their own," he said.

"At the turn of the century the attitude was that Cromwell was a dictator. With a change in attitude towards the establishment, he's being rediscovered as a hero. Prince Charles said recently that Cromwell was one of the greatest figures in English history. This comes from the future head of Britain whose ancestor was beheaded."

Unlike the latitude given director David Lean, Hughes had to cut his three and three-quarter hour long film down to two hours and 20 minutes, thus sacrificing much of the important historical events that gave a clearer picture of both King Charles I and his adversary, Cromwell.

During his brief visit to San Francisco, Hughes (who also directed "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang") hosted a group of Hunters Point youngsters on the set of KBHK-Channel 44 to distribute posters, albums with speeches, the musical sound track and to sign autographs.

"One difficulty was putting Sir Alec on a horse for the first time. The horse would start to walk away with him sitting patiently in the saddle and we'd have to run after it because he didn't know how to instruct the horse to stop."

If there is a question mark on your Christmas list—for the man around the house—let him knockaround in Keds' Knockarounds. Next to "barefeet comfort" there is nothing like them.

They come on smart, these leather top casuals. They have a shaggy outer finish, and a bold, brawny look. But the smooth inside finish gentles feet—makes them feel as great without socks as with.

Make it an easy, comfortable, knockaround Christmas for that man with Keds Knockarounds. There's a bunch of handsome styles.

Serramonte Shop Project

They Earned and Learned In Making Candleholders

By WILL THOMAS

Members of the Serramonte Vocational Industrial Arts Club have learned and earned with mass-produced candleholders.

In the ideal Christmas project, the Daly City student club perfected its work flow to such an extent that each wooden candleholder took about 2 minutes and 34 seconds to produce.

"We made $300 in three hours," Serramonte shop instructor Steve Shepler explained.

Made of ash-stained walnut, candleholders sold for $7.49 each. Shepler said the net profit on each was about $6. The students made 60 in those three hours. All were sold.

The Vocational Industrial Arts Club was introduced to Serramonte this year and already has about 40 boys and girls as members.

It's main purpose is to help students gain a realistic study of industrial practices, said Shepler.

There was more to producing the candleholders than just sawing, shaping, gluing and staining.

Because the project was educational, there had to be a market analysis, a research development program, time and motion studies, cost analysis, some public relations work and production line jig design.

The local members of VICA, which is a national organization (one of the purposes of the candleholder was to raise dues money), have other plans including:

"More elaborate" mass production, product sales with and for industry, recreation trips, VICA scholarships, offset printing, conferences, jobs and contests, according to John Hein, club president.

In the meantime, they continue their learning experiences in a new shop, with new equipment and an eager adviser.

VOCATIONAL INDUSTRIAL arts Club member Jerry Fiorucci goes through first step of candleholder project, planing of rough wood.

FINAL STEP is the assembly of the candleholder, demonstrated by Bob Runnels and Debbie Borghello.

Sportscripts

While this space was occupied with Dave Wilcox for the past two weeks, several news items appeared on the sports pages which might be worth discussing.

One of the items which won't come under discussion is the one concerning the cross country runner back east who attributed his fast time and win in 20 degree weather to the women's panty-hose he was wearing. We see nothing wrong with that, as long as his slip wasn't showing.

But there was another cross country report worth mentioning. Back in Williamsburg, Va., where the 32nd annual NCAA cross country race was held a couple of weeks ago, a championship was awarded to Villanova at the expense of Oregon solely on the basis of movie films reviewed 24 hours after the title had apparently been annexed by the Ducks.

According to the United Press report, the films showed that as Villanova's Les Nagy came across the finish line in 62nd place, a man in front of him fell.

Nagy was held back for a moment, which caused him to be passed by several runners so that he finished 67th. After viewing the films, judges adjusted the finish so that Nagy was given a 62nd, which allowed Villanova to win, 85-86.

We're not going to get into an argument over whether films or live officials on the field at the instant of play should determine winners and losers. That can be a very complex discussion leading to some illogical conclusion. All we say is that the NCAA should be consistent.

IF THEY ARE GOING to allow national collegiate cross country championships to be determined by race films, then they should have told PAC-8 commissioner Tom Hamilton to award the UCLA football game to Cal the week the Bears beat UCLA on the field but lost on the scoreboard. Dennis Dummit's knee DID, after all, hit the turf a good two or three yards before he reached 21-D territory. That loss robbed Cal of a lot of momentum; and who knows, they might have ended up in the Rose Bowl.

And then, of course, there was the Heisman Trophy Award. We've certainly no quarrel with Jim Plunkett's selection, but think the designation of the trophy should be changed.

It supposedly goes to the nation's best college football player. But it really always goes to the nation's best offensive football player, or to be more precise, to the nation's best back, or... oh, what the hell. It almost always goes to the nation's best quarterback. So why not have a Heisman trophy for the best quarterback, one for the best back who is not a quarterback, one for the best offensive lineman who catches passes, one for the best defensive lineman who doesn't catch passes, one for the best defensive front lineman, best linebacker, best corner back, best safety, best kicker, etc. etc.

COME TO THINK OF IT, we're glad the entire collegiate football season is over. We don't think we could have stood, or kept up with, another week of special awards. Every Monday the writers would get together and hand out so many accolades that about the only people not getting awards were stadium janitors and assistant offensive line coaches.

There would be the outstanding university division lineman and outstanding college division lineman, outstanding university division offensive player, outstanding college division defensive player, outstanding players in several categories for each league, outstanding players in several categories for different sections of the state.

It was getting to the point where if a player didn't get some kind of special award for his weekend play he was getting stripped of his black letter in front of the entire student body on Tuesday mornings.

All the awards this past year just made more succinct the very candid statement Dave Wilcox gave us in the piece we did on him a couple of weeks ago when we asked him if he had, as we thought we had remembered, made All Coast when he was at UCLA.

"No," he said, grinning. "I didn't make any of that 'all' stuff, except All Oregon. But then everybody on the team makes All Oregon."

BUT BACK TO THE NEWS ITEMS... if you can stand a baseball item at this time of the year. Whether you can stand it or not, we're going to tell you that we think the Sporting News' Comeback of the Year Award to Chicago Cub Jim Hickman was a strange one.

Not that we have anything against Hickman. In fact, we've always thought he was a fine athlete and an underrated player who might be a good one if given a full shot at a job. And that is the point.

Until this past year, and about the second half of the 69 season, Hickman had never really been given a complete chance. Coming into the '70 season, Hickman had a lifetime batting average of .236, and in eight years in the majors had never hit more than .245, driven in more than 57 runs, nor hit more than 21 homers, the latter of which he accomplished, ironically, in 1969, the year he was, according to the Sporting News "coming back" from.

We don't deny that Hickman was great in '70. He hit .315, whacked 32 homers, drove in 115, scored 102, and often carried the Cubs on his back. But what, really, did he come back from? He had never been THERE!

The Comeback of the Year Award, it seems to us, should go to a man who has known the heights, apparently failed, and then fought back to retain what he once had possessed. That, it seems to us, takes more fortitude than just suddenly coming up with a great season after years of failure. In the latter case, it's a matter of everything to gain, nothing to lose. A good fairly recent local example of a true comeback year was Mike McCormick, who won the Cy Young Award (in 1967) after a year in which he had had an 11-14 record, which had been his best record in six seasons, during which time he had won only 19 games, and had bounced from team to team, including his first stint ever in the minors. He was a guy who had won 51 games in four seasons with the Giants as a virtual teenager, had at age 21 been the National League's ERA leader, and who had then flopped miserably, even mysteriously, until he was almost 30. And then, to win 22 games... why, THAT was a real comeback. McCormick had been there. He had had some place to come back FROM.

Perhaps the Sporting News should give awards for the Major League Surprise Performance of the Year. In that case, Hickman would have been more than qualified to be the recipient of the award.

SOME GENIUS in the NFL office has figured out that the average pro football player sees only about 90 minutes of concentrated game action in a regular season. We don't know what "actual action", a baseball player sees, but even playing a full 193 game schedule, it's probably not too much more than a football player, not when you think of all the inaction between pitches, time on the bench, etc.

Which once again leads us to our annual theory that pro basketball players have to be the best conditioned athletes in America. Their action, 48 minutes a game for more than 80 games, is, if they're regulars, almost continual. No resting between plays.

TAG END: People keep saying that George Blanda was finally proved human in that Jet game when it was Lamoni-ca, not Blanda, who pulled the game out in the last second. But think again. Lamoni-ca only tied the game. Who was it, do you think, who kicked the game winning extra point?

County Cagers Vie in Tourney

The eight-team El Camino Invitational Tournament and a scattering of a few interesting individual match-ups highlight this week's prep basketball action in San Mateo County.

The four-day tourney at Camino begins Wednesday evening with a 7 p.m. game featuring Riordan and Lowell High School. Host El Camino follows in the night-cap against Drake. Thursday the second half of the first round play finds St. Ignatius against Mills in the 7 p.m. game followed by San Mateo and Westmor High Schools. Riordan is the defending tourney champion after beating St. Ignatius in last year's finale.

Tomorrow the Burlingame Panthers travel to Carlmont to play the Scots (3-2). The game will be probably used as a comparison as to relative strengths between two Mid-Peninsula League title contenders. Hillsdale has already downed Carlmont twice. The Knights, meanwhile, see if they can stop Lowell's high-scoring guard Mark Gilbert tomorrow in a non-conference match in the city.

Capuchino High School came away with third place and a great deal of respect when the 1970 Riordan Invitational finally ended last Saturday evening in San Francisco.

Woodrow Wilson won the tourney championship by besting host Riordan, 59-55, in the championship game. Capuchino dismembered Lincoln in the runner-up game, 76-54, while Jefferson was unable, as well as all the other teams, to stop Lowell's Mark Gilbert who led the city squad to a 70-56 victory over the North Peninsula League representatives.

Keith Hernandez and Steve Newberry were named to the All-Tourney team although a selection of any of the five starters from Cap could have been justified.

Leading 5-0, Lincoln fell prey to Cap's pressing defense as the Mustangs zoomed up to a 16-9 lead late in the first period. Then Hernandez and Newberry started driving inside on the SF Mustangs and Lincoln got in frequent foul problems.

Newberry also had penalty

Tangs Take Third Place

problems as he sat out the entire third period with three fouls but Rob Silver helped take up the slack and Don Dowling's rebounding controlled the game, allowing Cap to build up as much as an 18-point lead.

There were Indians everywhere (as Custer must have once said) when Lowell's Indians played Jeff's Indians, right before Cap's Mustangs played Lincoln's Mustangs but that's another story. But one Indian, Lowell's Golberg, looked like a whole tribe as he smashed all tournament scoring records for one and three games. His 40 points against Salesian set a new single-game standard while his three-game 110 total broke the old record by 40 points.

Gilberg popped for 35, his second such effort in the tourney, and Lowell kept Jeff center Ken Smith screened off the boards to stop a great deal of the Indians' inside effectiveness. A fast-breaking 28-point third period enabled Lowell to put the game safely away as Gilberg and Nick Hoppe led a running game that constantly penetrated for layins.

The Mustangs were the show Wednesday as a team. They broke the existing team scoring record for one game in smashing the Indians, 86-71, besting the old standard of 84 set in 1967 by Polytechnic.

Another offensive record was set in the Cap encounter as Lowell's smooth Mark Gilbert tallied 35 points, breaking the old record by three points. Along the way he sank 17 free throws as his driving layins forced Cap into countless two-shot foul situations.

But Gilbert had little help while the Mustangs were hitting from all distances and angles. Center Don Dowling and guard Keith Hernandez were especially adept at getting behind Lowell defenders on fast breaks resulting in easy layins. Lowell had numerous 12-15-foot jumpers against Cap's zone defense but hit only 20 per cent of its floor shots in the first half.

Continuing their running attack the Mustangs were able to build up a 20-point lead late in the third period when the subs began filtering in. The 86-point final could have been much higher — Capuchino missed 18 free throws.

El Camino Wins First Tourney

El Camino High School's belated debut into the 1970 basketball season was a success last Saturday night.

Playing without one starter, Rene Herrerias' Colts edged the winless Mills Vikings, 54-51, dropping the Vikes to an 0-4 pre-season mark.

Steve Carroll led the Camino scorers with 20 while junior center Chuck Hextrum led the losers with 24. Camino led all the way, with the exception of a 25-all halftime score, and had a 10-point lead in the third period. But the Mills press took its toll in the last quarter.

Mills closed the gap to within one with 30 seconds left and had the ball but a walking violation turned it over to the Colts and forward Mark Spivey put it away with the last bucket.

Carlmont got its third win of the year at Oceana High School's expense, 71-54, in other Saturday action.

Pacifica Yule Cage Tourney

Pacifica's Christmas Basketball Classic will be held on December 28, 29, 30, and 31 at Terra Nova High, Oceana High, Sharp Park, and Lind Mar Schools.

The tournament will be open to any boy in the fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth grades who lives, or attends school in Pacifica. It will also be open to all Churches, community groups and neighborhood teams.

Skyline College Cagers Edged in SLO Tournament

Skyline College returns to the local basketball wars tomorrow night, boasting a prestigious second place finish in the Cal Poly Basketball tournament.

Coach Walt Rilliet's cagers, off to their best start in the school's short two-year history, meet Foothill in an 8 o'clock contest on the latter's floor.

Saturday night, Skyline bowed to the Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo Frosh, 71-62, in the championship finale. The Trojans had gained entrance into the finals

Oceana, South S.F. Win Cage Games

Aragon High School got on the winning side of the ledger with an 84-50 victory over winless Half Moon Bay. The game marked the first appearance of senior guard Bill Lewis for the Dons. He scored 10 in the second half after sitting out the first two weeks with leg problems. Aragon lost the services of forward Marc Nelson, though, with a severe ankle sprain. Kurt Peterson once more led the Dons with 12 rebounds and 22 points.

Forward Mike Young's three-point play with seconds remaining gave host South San Francisco a thrilling 63-62 victory over much taller Balboa High School of San Francisco. The game saw-sawed back and forth with neither team able to gain more than a five-point advantage. Young and junior forward Marty Gale led the Warriors with 15 and 13 points respectively.

Mike Root's eight-foot bank shot with eight seconds left kept the Oceana Sharks among the unbeaten with a 43-41 win over visiting John O'Connell. Root had eight in the last quarter. Senior guard Dennis Garcia was the quieting factor for the Sharks as he broke a full-court O'Connell press on numerous occasions allowing the winners to stay always a little ahead.

Terra Nova's Jeff Wellemeyer was Tiger sparkplug as the tall Pacificans downed visiting San Carlos, 66-48. Wellemeyer scored 20 points and, along with 6-6 Bud Papadakis, controlled the boards over the much-smaller Dons.

Block W's are Given Ram Athletes

Westmoor's Block W held its annual fall banquet honoring its athletes who played fall sports, on December 1, in the Westmoor Cafeteria.

Herbert Goodyear introduced the frosh-soph and varsity cross country team and awarded them blocks. Jeff Krow, who is always near the top in every race, was selected most valuable player for varsity, while Jim Katapodis, was MVP of the frosh-soph team.

Tony Giammona introduced the championship 120's team to which he awarded Block W's. Bob Fidler and Rory Poblit shared the honors of MVP.

MVP for the co-champion 110's was 1st team all-leaguer Greg Georgakas. Coach Bron Van Alstyne made the presentation.

Coach George Mc Nutt introduced the freshman football team. Honored as MVP was Dan Tomzak, quarterback.

Darrell Kettner and John Hart received a MVP trophy for soph football from Coach Harry Weidner.

Varsity football members received their blocks from Coach Pete Matisi. Irving Rowell, who was a hard-hitting middle linebacker for the Rams and always seemed to be in on the tackle, received the MVP trophy.

Union Local No. 1944 of the Fire Fighters will purchase uniforms and equipment necessary for the new team, said Union President Bill Wilson.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Restaurants Complex And Pacifica Mayor

Indefatigable is a word usually used to describe an individual who is formidable in terms of energy and strength, who is untiring and dynamic, who never slows down or gives up the fight.

Rare is the man who fits this description, but then Nick Gust is a rare kind of man to begin with. All his life, Gust has been on the move, championing causes, establishing businesses, leading numerous lives all at once.

Currently he is facing the tremendous job of Mayor of Pacifica, several small communities incorporated into one (it's like handling 10 times the work load of the average mayor). And, when he isn't making decisions and maneuvering politically Nick Gust is tending to his complex of restaurants, located in Rockaway Beach on a picturesque stretch of beach.

The oldest of these restaurants is Nick's, which serves family-style dinners seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m. This is a favorite gathering place for large Sunday morning breakfast parties. Nick's features dancing Friday and Saturday evenings to the Del Carlo Combo, with hostess-vocalist Mary Ann Hay often giving voice support. Joe Payer provides organ music on the other evenings.

Just across the street, also fronting the ocean, is a building which houses the other two Gust enterprises: The Moonraker restaurant and Papagayo Room.

The Moonraker, which first opened two years ago, is a gourmet house serving such delicacies as Chicken Cacciatore Milanese, Frog Legs a la Provencale, and Roast Rack of Lamb Kampana.

Manager is Joseph Mullich, a personable Austrian who in the past worked for both the Hilton and Del Webb chains. He has 29 years of experience, and it shows in his superb management of this fine restaurant. The smiling maitre'd is Jorge Monti, who goes to extra lengths to please each diner.

Downstairs, and offering an equally pleasant view of the Pacific, is the Papagayo Room, a Mexican restaurant with an atmosphere that puts you in the mood for its many ethnic foods. A meal at the Papagayo Room is an unforgettable experience. To find anything better, you would definitely have to travel south of the border. Augmenting the food is a strolling musical trio, which will serenade you (giving you a beat by which you can chomp your tostados).

How does Nick Gust find time for all these and his political chores as Pacifica mayor as well? "Well," says Gust, shrugging, "keeping busy is the only way of life I know."

COVETED AWARD — Adrian Stickney, owner of the Shirt Tail and Stickney restaurants, proudly displays the "Restaurant Hall of Fame" plaque which he received from Hospitality Magazine in New York. Only one restaurateur per month receives the coveted honor in the United States. Stickney was cited for high standards of restaurant excellence and unstinting community service, especial aid and support for amateur athletics on the Peninsula.

Lew Lehr's Dinner Prices Remain Same

Now that most restaurants are discontinuing their complete dinners — and raising prices as well, Lew Lehr's in the Marina is indeed an oasis. Steak dinners remain at the same price — as low as $5, including an appetizing relish platter, tossed salad with choice of dressing, stuffed baked potato and beverage. It's one of San Francisco's best dining out values... Despite the fact he works over a hot stove most of his time, Enrico Romano, proprietor-owner of Romano's Italian restaurant in Pacifica's Rockaway Beach area, never permits himself to get steamed. As cool as a cucumber, Enrico goes about his daily chores with dedication, preparing his Italian sauces and his small-medium-large pizzas — the kind that really melt in your mouth... Bear in mind when lunching in the Greenwillow dining room at Benjamin Franklin Hotel that you may also enjoy the luncheon entrees during the dinner hours with "no raise in prices." Which means this downtown San Mateo hotel is offering one of the finest quality food values in the Bay Area. You owe it to yourself to benefit by the new menu prices.

Lycett Seeks Change

By VIRGIL WILSON

In recent years the spark plug of the drive to change the method of electing county supervisors has been Bernard J. Lycett, mayor of Daly City.

Until this fall, when he and other mayors failed to persuade the Board of Supervisors to place on the November general election ballot a charter amendment to change the election system, Lycett was the spearhead. But no longer. He has given up the fight.

"I've said all I can say," Lycett tells The Times, "and there is no use kicking a dead horse. I've sworn never to go near it again. It's possible that I could be motivated to get back into the fight, but I doubt it."

Lycett traces his entry into the fray back to the day he was attending a meeting of the Board of Supervisors in Redwood City and noticed that one of the members, an elderly man who is not on the board now, was asleep.

"It occurred to me," the mayor recalls, "that if that supervisor ran for office again he would be elected."

In the campaign that followed Lycett talked long and hard about the "freeze-in" he claimed resulted from the system of electing supervisors countywide rather than by district. He lost no opportunity to point out that in the last two decades, and possibly well beyond that, only once has an elected incumbent been defeated. That was in 1960 when James V. Fitzgerald, a good campaigner with $13,500 to spend, unseated Thomas J. Callan.

"I still think the same," Lycett says. "Electing supervisors at large is a bad form of government. It is just that now I am not doing anything about it."

Through the years Lycett and those of like mind insisted that all they wanted was for the supervisors to allow the proposed charter amendment to go on the ballot and that they would thereafter keep their peace and live with the results.

"If the supervisors are so convinced that they are right, why not let the voters confirm it?" was his plea.

That, says Mrs. Jean Fassler, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, begs the question.

"The real issue is what is the best form of government for the people," she insists. "We have that now and there is no point in putting an amendment on the ballot to change it."

Mayor Joseph E. Judge of San Carlos has, in general, taken the same position and has been the leader, among the mayors of the side opposing the Lycett viewpoint. When the Council of Mayors was voting to ask the supervisors to place the amendment on the ballot, Judge called the plea to "let the people decide" a "gimmick" that overlooked the real issue. He spelled out his viewpoint in this published statement:

"In this era of area wide problems, including environmental pollution, sewage treatment, garbage disposal and rapid transit, our elected Board of Supervisors should be responsive to regional needs not, then, specialized needs of each of the five districts. The fact that the successful supervisor is elected at large serves to insure that the official is responsive to the entire county."

Lycett pints out that, prior to becoming a supervisor, Fitzgerald was a member of a county grand jury that recommended the change to the district election system. (Fitzgerald candidly admits today that the action was "political" and says he is foursquare for the at-large method.)

Further, Lycett likes to recall that, before they got on the county board, Mrs. Fassler and Robert St. Clair expressed themselves as in favor of the district system.

"But I don't blame them," Lycett is frank to state. "If I became a supervisor, which I don't propose to do, I'd probably change, too."

And he noted that the author of the "Memo" which suggested that if certain areas "had more active well baby clinics" children wouldn't be so hard to reach, had apparently not been aware that there are 35 well baby clinics a month at 16 locations in this county, with preschool children being immunized for measles, among other things.

The "Memo" suggested that 10 million children are hard to reach (and thus might not be immunized) because they lived in states that don't have school entrance immunization laws, an active school health program, lived in a community "that lets epidemics happen," lived in an area with few active well-baby clinics, lived far away from immunization centers, or lived in communities where parents couldn't afford to take children to private physicians.

Listed with San Mateo county were Marin and Solano counties.

"This whole thing doesn't agree with the facts," Dr. Bodie said. "I must say the person who put it out seems irresponsible."

"These people have never approached us, called us or called on us. We have reduced measles to only 17 cases a year (in a population of more than 500,000), no child can attend school unless immunized; our clinics are running out of babies to immunize, and we are actually closing some of them down."

"In 1969, we had Stanford Research Institute make a measles survey in this county and after its report in April, 1969, found a few pockets in the county — specifically at Five Points, Redwood City, Daly City and at Pescadero — and we moved in with special clinics, immunizing and cleaning them up."

Although several attempts were made yesterday and today to secure comment from Dow Chemical Company as to an explanation of its measles statements, no person could be found to comment today.
